NEW TRIUMPHS FOR AMERICANS

POLICE HUNT NEPHEW AS MURDER SUSPECT

WANTED FOR SLAYING OF MRS. OTTILIE EBERHARD AND SHOOTING OF DAUGHTER.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, July 20.—After an autopsy to-day which proved that Mrs. Ottilie Eberhard was shot to death and her body placed on the New York, Susquehanna & Western Railroad tracks to conceal the crime, the police sent a general alarm throughout the country for the arrest of August Eberhard, twenty-one years old, the woman's nephew, who was her last companion.

It was Eberhard who induced the rich and her beautiful young daughter, Ottilie, to take their money—$2,700 in cash—and accompany him on a trolley ride from the car he led them to a lonely spot, sixteen miles northwest of Jersey City.

There, in the midst of a frightful thunder storm, the woman was shot dead, and five shots penetrated the girl's body.

INTENDED TO MARRY HIM.

Around this bare detail, there is woven one of the most remarkable tragedies ever revealed—one which reads more like a work of sensational fiction.

The amazing feature of the tragedy, the discovery of the bullet wounds in the victim's mangled body, adds to the mystery which developed when the woman's body was found on the tracks, and the beautiful daughter, after fleeing from the murderers took refuge in a desolate house and told the thrilling story of the crime.

The Eberhards came to this country last Thursday, the daughter intending to marry her cousin, August.

Young Eberhard took his aunt and cousin, whom he met at the steamer when they arrived from Europe, over into New Jersey on an outing and was with them when the shooting occurred.

Eberhard is smooth shaven with dark curly hair and dark eyes and talks with a German accent. It was through his glowing pictures of life in America that his aunt and cousin resolved to make their home here, and young Eberhard was to have married Miss Ottilie, who is only twenty years old. Some light was thrown on the movements of Eberhard by a statement made to-day by Mrs. Wehmann, wife of his employer.

"We had a great deal of confidence in Gus," she said, "and I don't believe that he had any hand in this affair. He was just a big, overgrown kid, and I don't think he had brains enough to make up such a plot. He was all right for a grocery clerk, but he would never amount to much besides that.

"Gus had not been working for us for several days. On Friday he packed his suit case and left us. He said he was going to Canada to spend his vacation. I asked him why he did not go to his father's place up the State, but he said if he went there his father would make him work. That is the last we saw of him."

A few months ago Eberhard spoke to the police of the West One Hundred and Daniels Wins Swimming Championship, Ewry Captures Broad Jump, and Two Others Equal Records.

LONDON, July 20.—Two notable American victories were won in the Olympic games to-day by C. M. Daniels of the New York Athletic Club, who captured the 100-metre swimming contest, and by Ray Ewry of the same club, who defeated all of his competitors in the standing broad jump.

Daniels won the final heat in the swimming event in 1m. 5 3-5s. L. G. Rich of the Brookline Swimming Club was fourth.

Ewry jumped 10 ft. 1 1-2 in. C. T. Siclitras of Greece was second and Martin Sheridan of America third, with 10 ft. 7 in. to his credit.

SMASHES OLYMPIC RECORD.

In the trial heats of the 100-metre dash the fifteenth heat was carried off by Rector of the American team in 10 4-5, equalling an Olympic record. In the trial heat of the 400-metre hurdle C. J. Bacon of America equalled the Olympic record by doing the trick in 57 seconds.

Bacon literally forced the English spectators to applaud him. Heretofore when Americans won an event the English accepted the result dutifully enough. Even the display of extraordinary ability in Athletics failed to cause them to throw off their phlegmatic manner. Bacon's splendid race to-day, however, thawed the ice a little and earned what might be called the first bit of English applause since the meet began.

H. L. Coe, also American, won the second heat of this event, consequently there will be two representatives of this country in the final. They will race against Koops of Holland and Harmon of England, who won the other two heats. There is little likelihood that Bacon can be approached let alone beaten in the final barring, of course, accidents.

CLIMATE AGAINST YANKEES.

Great efforts are being made to keep the Americans entered in Field sports in good condition. The climate is against them. This is a greater handicap than those not concerned in the games realize. They are busy night and day, and great attention is being paid to the training table.

James E. Sullivan, American commissioner at the games, said this morning that he firmly believed the United States team would be victorious. The field sports, he reasoned, will bring up the average a bounds. The teams from other countries realize that America has a distinct advantage over them in this particular.

America has another handicap to overcome, this being the manner in which the heat drawings have been conducted. The drawings went against them in the 1,500 metre race and the same thing happened in the 800-metre event, the heats of which will be run off to-morrow.

Daniels's score does not count in the score upon which the track and field championship will be decided, but he will be credited with a win under the English system of scoring.

De Heiny, Hungary, was second; Jalin, Sweden, third, and Rich, of Brookline, Mass., was fourth.

The trial heats of the 100-metre dash resulted as follows:

Fifth heat, won by Cloughen, America.

Tenth heat won by Kerr, Canada.
Eleventh heat won by Hamilton, America.

Fifteenth heat won by Rector, American. Time—10 4-5, equals Olympic record.
Sixteenth heat won by Stark, England.
Seventeenth heat won by Roche, England.

800-meter run—First heat won by Rodoy, Hungary.
Second heat won by Sheppard, America. Third heat won by Halstead, America. Fourth heat won by Longhi, Italy.

First heat—Won by Koops, Holland. Second heat—Won by H. L. Coe, America.

Third heat—Won by C. J. Bacon, America. (New Olympic record, 57 seconds.)
Fourth heat—Won by Harmon, England.

Get That $1,000 Key! It's Rusting in the Rain

Boston, July 20, '08.

My Dear Treasure Hunter:

If you don't get that $1,000 key pretty soon it will be so rusty as a result of the rains that it will be injured. I am doing all I can to help you get it as well as the other valuable treasure to which clews have already been given.

Should the $1,000 and $750 building lot not be found to-day, I will print a photograph to-morrow showing you where the treasure is hidden.

I have made these clews MUCH PLAINER TO-DAY. You will have only YOURSELF TO BLAME if you do not ran them down.

What beats me is that with all of the real clever sleuths on the trail of that money on Boston Common it had not been found. There will be some incredulous people who will say REALLY THOUGHTFUL AND CAREFUL SEARCHER gets the wealth.

Up to the time the last chapter of the story is published, which will be found in to-morrow's AMERICAN, THE WOMEN WHO WANT THE $850 MILLER PLAYER PIANO AND THE TWO WATCHES HAVE AN OPPORTUNITY TO COMPETE. Who is Madame Alvarez, really, and how should the story end? Write it very briefly.

So that there may be no possibility of unfairness, I have been authorized by the AMERICAN to state that no employe of this newspaper, nor relative nor friend of an employe, is eligible to this treasure hunt. This statement is made now so that there will be no mistake in the matter when the treasure is claimed.

Cheerfully yours,
"THE MONEY MAN."

NAVAL HERO M'CREA DIES

NEW YORK, July 20.—Captain Henry McCrea, United States Navy, who was in command of the battleship Georgia on the cruise of the North Atlantic squadron to the Pacific, died yesterday of bright's disease, in the Naval Hospital, Brooklyn. He had been ill since June 22.

Captain McCrea was fifty-seven years old.

In the voyage of the battleships to San Francisco Captain McCrea, then ill from the fatal malady, was able to perform his duties only by the exercise of an indomitable will. He was relieved on his command shortly after the fleet arrived at San Francisco.

Refusing to admit himself too ill for service he proceeded to Washington and on June 20 took up his duties with the light-house board. He served only three days with the latter, however, and then was compelled to give up and go to the Naval Hospital.

LIGHTNING KILLS GIRL UNDER TREE

WORCESTER, July 20.—During a heavy thunder storm which passed over Montague Plains, between Turners Falls and Lake Pleasant, Jennie Desotelle, sixteen years old, of Montague, who sought refuge under a large pine tree, was struck by lightning and instantly killed.

GLIDDEN PLANS HUB-GOTHAM AIRSHIP LINE

Plans are being completed in this city for the organization of a company to build a number of freight and passenger balloons to be operated in the United States, Canada and Mexico. Within two years, it is declared people may be riding between Boston and New York by the very newest air line.

Charles J. Glidden is behind the project and he has employed the firm of Whipple, Sears & Ogden to draw up the plans and incorporate the company. It is to be known as the American Aerial Navigation Company.

Mr Glidden plans to first try the scheme with small balloons that will carry two passengers and the operator. At that the air ships will be built to carry more passengers and even freight. With relay stations at Springfield and New Haven the figures that the trips between this city and the Metropolis can be had at last 300 days in the year in between seven and eight hours.

CITY AUDITOR'S OFFICE PROBED BY 'FIN. COM.'

The auditor's and assessors' departments are receiving attention from the Finance Commission to-day. This forenoon Commissioner Randall G. Morris visited the auditor's office and took notes as to the number of clerks employed, their duties and salaries, the appointed need of the force employed and of conditions in general in that department. The City Hall gossips state that it is a foregone conclusion that the commission will recommend a material reduction in the auditor's force.

This afternoon Commissioners George U. Crocker and John F. Moors are making a similar investigation of the assessors department. The commission has paid some attention to this department hitherto, and at that time recommended the abolishment of the office of second assistant assessor and a reduction in the number of clerks. The object of the visit of Commissioners Crocker and Moors to-day is causing some anxiety on the part of the employes.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, Boston, July 20.—Before the departing guests, the Chicago White Sox, could catch their train out of town the Red Sox, under Deacon McGuire's command, hoped to give them a final jolt and thereby get an even break in the series.

With three in the knapsack, the Comiskey bunch wanted to sail for home with just one more, which would make their average the same as they got in the other cities along the Eastern circuit, and Captain Fielder Jones said their record must not be marred.

The windup of the series appeared all to be good for the Red Sox, in spite of the expectations of the visitors to make it three out of four, for there was big Cy Young to face them in the farewell clash, and the old no-hit record-maker was just itching to fetch those Windy City athletes a few things about what speed would do to their batting.

Young, still feeling a little lame from the twisted tendons in his ankle knew his servilers were needed, and that was enough, as he always is ready to strap on the harness when his team is hard pressed, no matter what his condition be.

There was another good sharpshooter handy in Lefty Burchell, in case Uncle Cy felt his injury any, and the youngster was just as anxious to slay the White Stocking crowd as the veteran.

The fact that Nick Altrock was to have his second fling in the series not with expectations of surprise, as such a move made the prospects look favorable for his getting the bumps which failed to materialize when he appeared in the opening game. Nick did not care how often he pitched, and was chuck full of confidence that he could get two wins from the team that was glad enough to get rid of him at one time.

CHICAGO, July 20.—There was more respect accorded the Boston Doves when they battled the Cubs in the second game of the series to-day after the swell job done to the home talent before a big Sunday crowd.

The fans went down heavy on the home team because they figured that by losing yesterday they would extend themselves to-day and make it hot for the Downeasters before the smoke cleared away.

It was the last stopping place for the Doves before they took the road back home and Leader Kelley told his men that they should wind-up their Western trip in a blaze of glory by knocking down the Cubs a few times.

The Boston birds willing enough were working with the knowledge that the Cubs were in a slump state since losing their top place and were playing under a pull. The Cubs were due to strike their old stride, they time and the fans were anxious that they break their hoodoo on the Doves, but it was a hard proposition, with the veterans on the home-fed crowd playing their top ball.

SCHOONER AGROUND IN ROCKPORT HARBOR

ROCKPORT, July 20.—The three-masted schooner Harold C. Beecher, New York for Rockport, with coal, grounded while making her berth in Rogers Cove Harbor early to-day, lying amidships on a ledge in the centre of the harbor, the existence of which had not been known before. The tug Richmond, owned by the Seaboard Transportation Company of New York, which went ashore on Sandy Bay Breakwater yesterday, was floated at high tide early today.

TO FORECLOSE BIG QUARRY MORTGAGE

In the United States Circuit Court to-day Judge Holt ordered the foreclosure on the mortgage of $350,000 on the Milford Pink Granite Quarry at Milford held by the Franklin Trust Company of New York, on August 4, unless the sum of $340,303, the amount now due, is paid before that time. The quarry has been in the hands of a receiver, Ralph A. Steward of Boston, since 1903.

SLAIN GIRL'S SECRET LIFE GUARDS SLAYER

Hazel Drew, Shy, Diffident, Soft Voiced, Had Many Veiled Friendships.

PAST LIKE CLOSED BOOK

TROY, N. Y., July 20.—Evidence unearthed by an AMERICAN reporter proves that Hazel Drew, the beautiful, nineteen-year-old victim in the great Troy mystery, had a secret sister.

It has been learned that she knew a Pullman car conductor and frequently met him on his trips through Albany. His run is between New York and Saratoga and his home is in Lexington avenue, New York city.

It is believed that this clew will explain the girl's movements from Monday morning, July 6, until the following afternoon and possibly up to the time that she met her death.

District Attorney O'Brien has started three staff detectives on the trail which leads from New York to Saratoga.

The girl was seen at the Union station in Troy at 11:20 o'clock Monday by Mrs. Mary Robinson.

Met Sister Monday.

The conductor's car arrived in Albany from New York on Monday at 12 o'clock, leaving at 12:25.

It is believed Hazel met him first in Albany and later in Saratoga.

It has been learned that the girl frequently used a lonely spot near Teal Pond as a trysting place. She was seen there several times this Summer.

Hazel was seen on a street car going toward Sand Lake on Tuesday afternoon with a young man. They were engaged in an animated conversation over a note one held and in mind from the other. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hollguth took meeting the girl on the noon train to Sand Lak at 2:30 Tuesday evening.

The planned and rambling secrecy of her life now serves to conceal its secrecy and safety the murderer of Hazel Drew.

Her Life of Secrecy.

That is the one thing that stands out clearly in the curious and terrible mystery, that is the one thing that now acts to make a mockery of the months who would find the man who killed this fair young girl.

When Grace Brown's body was found in Adirondacks in a very little while were looking for Chester Gillette, and when Chester Gillette was found the whole web began to unfold. But Grace Brown's life had been open and simple. There was no secret correspondence in it. The girl made no riddle for those who would read. Her poor, simple little life was as an open book, with words written in daylight. The chapters of her youth that was to end in murder were all there, and kept secret was the perfidy of the man she loved. Him she protected and shielded until recently followed to her destruction.

But the antithesis is impressive in the case of Hazel Drew, here found a strange barrier of concealment in the girl herself—a maze of secret trips and various by veiled friendships. Everywhere are signs everywhere that the girl lived secretly a life of secrecy, and it is only those who knew her every day life deemed her as a girl strangely quiet and quiet and strangely modest in her social follies and follies of young womanhood.

Here I her mind is centered upon this in most lively discussion. Hazel Drew was surely a quite girl, and in the opinion of a girl, diffident, she, safe stepping. Many said it was a girl, she did not not realize her youth and pertinence to better advantage. Many said the face of Hazel Drew's soft, clear complexion large and brilliant eyes, graceful body and graceful ways should not be letting her youth glide by without the youth's rewards of admiration, courtship, pleasure, to say nothing of the possibility of not crying if she fried, above her mental attention in life.

WEALTHY WOMAN LURED TO THIS COUNTRY, SLAIN; GIRL WOUNDED

flying third street station about getting a permit to carry a revolver. He said he had to go to market in Welmann's wagon early in the morning and ought to have one. He was told to make formal application for a permit, but he never did this and had no right to carry the revolver which was in his possession when he took his aunt and cousin over to Jersey.

It is not known what happened there the girl did not know. At the height of a thunder and lightning storm, while they were walking along the tracks, the mother says, crying: "I've been struck by lightning."

Then there was firing—vaguely the girl pictured three men on the embankment—and she felt the hot sting of four grazing bullets. She fled at the command of her cousin, August. She did not see him fire any of the shots, though she knew he had a loaded revolver in his pocket. He ran away from her toward the place whence the sparks of flame had appeared. That was the last seen of August.

Ottilie, half blinded, almost senseless and unable to speak English, staggered along the tracks for six hour until she made her plight known. Then, through the careless-ness of those who aided her, she was held until morning before telling her story.

Scotch was made for the missing cousin immediately when the police learned of her connection with the case. But he could not be found either in New Jersey or in New York, where he has lived above a grocery store in which he worked, at One Hundred and Fifty-second street and 8th Nicholas avenue.

Early to-day the police learned that young Eberhard's father lives at a hamlet near this, perhaps also the killing of her son. New York, and a corps of detectives were sent there to surround the house, in the belief that August may be there or may go there.

ASSAILANTS WERE HIRED.

The Jersey police asserted freely that they believed the slaying of Mrs. Eberhard and perhaps also the killing of her daughter had been deliberately planned. They declared that the assassins were really were more than one, were engaged to attack the women at a spot previously agreed upon, and that the leader perhaps fired some of the shots himself.

The motive was probably the robbery, they said. Mrs. Eberhard was known to be carrying a large amount of money with her. She had written her nephew and advised her to carry it rather than leave it in a hotel at which she was staying.

The police also discovered this fact:

On the way across the ocean on the liner Deutschland, Miss Eberhard fell in love with a musician of the ship's orchestra, one Ernest Held. Held called upon her several times after she landed, and she made known to her cousin, August, her preference for the dashing young musician. August was visibly jealous.

It was by no means certain, in the minds of those who heard the girl's story, that there actually were any strange men who attacked the trio as they went along the tracks. She was not sure whether or not she really saw anyone.

PROVES EXISTENCE OF A PLOT.

Another feature of the mystery which reveals a prearranged plot was discovered.

Mrs. Eberhard fell, the girl noticed, across the westbound tracks of the railroad. Her mangled body was discovered across the eastbound tracks—the train over upon which for a considerable time following the shooting a train ran upon. He found a doubt the body was placed there after the shots would be over and the evidence of a crime destroyed.

This plan almost succeeded. The bullet wound was under the breast. The body was cut in two by a train. But the wheels crossed above the breast and left the wound visible. Apparently the slayer or slayers had counted on killing the girl and disposing of her body likewise.

GIRL'S OWN STORY OF AMAZING CRIME

This is the girl's own story—the story of Ottilie Eberhard, twenty years old, beautiful and rich, as riches go in Austria—of how she was lured to this country by her young cousin, August Eberhard, supposing he was to marry him; how she fell in love with a young musician en route; how she and her mother was taken to a desolate place, where her mother was robbed; herself shot; the mother's body placed on a railroad track to conceal the crime—one of the most appalling tragedies that ever occurred in real life:

By OTTILIE EBERHARD.

"We had always lived in Vienna. My father was well-to-do, and when he died twenty years ago, just after I was born, he left my mother and me quite well off. He loved me and begged my mother to dispose of our property and come over here. He was rich, he told us. He had gained an interest in a big store. This I learn now was not true. He merely worked as a clerk.

"During this year his letters grew more frequent and more endearing, and finally, to please mother, I agreed to come to New York and marry him. So we sold our property. We put some money in bonds and brought with us about $3,000. We took passage on the Deutschland, July 9.

"I have not had so many men friends in Europe as I have had since I left Vienna. On the ship I met Ernest Held, who played the flute in the steamship's orchestra, and he devoted himself to me. He seemed so handsome and paid me such compliments that I made up my mind I couldn't marry Gus, for I loved Ernest.

"Gus met us at the pier when we arrived, and took us to this hotel. He remained with us that afternoon and evening, and "I saw a storm was rising, so I suggested we'd better go home. 'I know a shorter way,' he said. We must walk to another line, he followed him across the dark country.

"The place where they alighted from the trolley car was not far from the little Rockville Park station. Above that station is another little place called Coolburg. There is a switch upon which a line of coal cars stands, and a storage pond and chute from which they are loaded. There are lights hereabouts and fewer are free from the immediate vicinity of houses. The most desolate place we observed he found on the whole dreary Susquehanna line.)

"It began to thunder and lighten. I was not so frightened, but mother was. Gus cheered her up by saying, 'Only a little further to go now.' We came to some railroad tracks and walked along them, then across a trestle bridge. There was no light. It was extremely see to put our feet down ahead of us.

As Lightning Flashed.

"All of a sudden there was a great peal of thunder and a flash of lightning. I shivered and turned around to look for mother. I was walking ahead, Gus next and mother last.

"Just as I turned I saw her fall, and she screamed, 'Oh, Ottie, I'm struck by lightning!' Gus ran toward her quickly, and then I heard shots. Something stung me close to my eye. I saw flashes, as if from a gun, and then I was struck in the shoulder, in the side and in the ear.

"'Gus shouted to me, 'Run away as hard as you can! I'll go back to mother.' So I ran and ran. Something whistled past my head as I started.

"Then there were some cars near the place where mother fell. I thought the shots came from between them, or under them. But I don't know. And I thought I saw some men—three of them, when Gus' light flashed. But cannot be sure of that. I was frightened and hurt, and bleeding, so was when Gus told me to."

CRAZED, KILLS SELF AND BABES

NEW YORK, July 20.—The tragic story of a demented mother who carried her two children to death with her in the East River was revealed to-day by the identification of the body of a woman in the water off Pier 62 as Mrs. Gussie Benson, twenty-five years old, of Jamestown, N. D.

The woman was a daughter of Joseph Shapiro, a prosperous cigar maker, who lives with his wife and son Frank at No. 247 Cherry street. She was the wife of John Benson, formerly a grocer in Harlem, and had been married nine years.

A child was born to her a few weeks ago, but it lived only a few weeks. The loss of the baby unhinged the woman's mind. It is thought that she took the two children down to the river front and plunged overboard with them in her arms.

MILKMAN FOILS FIREBUG PLOT

A daring attempt at incendiarism at No. 1057 Cambridge street, East Cambridge, was blocked early to-day by the arrival of a milkman, who discovered the doormat and hallways of the house saturated with kerosene and strewn with matches. Mrs. Alice L. Dixon and her daughter were sleeping on the third floor of the house heedless of their danger.

That it was a deliberate attempt to fire the house the police believe, and they are heading every effort to apprehend the would-be incendiary. The building is in the midst of a number of wooden structures.

The milkman smelled kerosene and by the light of his lantern he observed that the floor was saturated with the inflammable fluid and that newspapers covered with oil had been thrown in the corners. He notified Patrolman McFeibben, who responded on duty at the house until daylight.

M'NARY OUT OF SENATE FIGHT

Ex-Congressman William S. McNary announces flatly and positively that he is not a candidate for the Democratic nomination to the Sixth Suffolk District and will decline to sign any nomination papers that might be taken out in his favor by friends.

Four candidates are in the field for the seat in the Senate now occupied by Senator Frank J. Linehan, Representative William Higgins of Ward 14; Representative Patrick O'Connell of Ward 15; Representative James Powers of Ward 13, and ex-Representative John McDonald of Ward 16.

TROLLEY SMASH HELD UP TUNNEL TRAFFIC

A broken trolley stand on one of the large semi-convertible tunnel cars delayed thousands of East Boston and Chelsea residents who use the tunnel as a means of reaching their work for nearly an hour today. The mishap occurred at the Maverick square entrance to the tunnel, and during the hour in which the inward bound track was tied up the cars were blockaded along Maverick street as far as Central square.

As the result of the accident the north and southbound ferries were crowded more than they have been for some time.

GLIDDEN TOURISTS OFF FOR MAINE; WING LEADS

CONTESTANTS MAKE QUICK GETAWAY ON 154-MILE DASH TO POLAND SPRINGS.

BY J. C. KERRISON.

With fine weather and good roads ahead of them, the Glidden tour contestants of the American Automobile Association started away from the Hotel Somerset today on their 154-mile run to Poland Springs, Me.

Amid the "honks" and shrieks of sirens the cars were rolled to the starting line and F. E. Wing, a member of the Bay State team, shoved his Marmon machine across the line promptly at 7 o'clock. The other contestants followed at one minute intervals, and were rapidly checked off.

Though all the participants had enjoyed a two-days' rest, they had no time to make repairs, and as soon as checked off they began fixing broken or delay tires.

Everybody was in good spirits and all were unanimous in praise of the Boston motorists for their hospitality and for the general good time furnished the visitors.

The second ster the starting point was another Marmon, with and Mrs. Marmon in the car. When Mrs. Cuneo in her Rainier, the only woman driver in the run, was checked out, the spectators on the sidewalk and the assembled local motorists gave her a hearty cheer.

Once over the line, few continued. Since they arrived Friday night, nothing in the way of repairs had been done, as the rules forebade it. There was a big hustle to put on new tires and those already on.

Cheer Woman Driver.

Mrs. Cuneo, with all the cleverness of a skilled mechanic, which, indeed, she is, assisted in fitting a new tire to one of the wheels of her car, amid applause.

The cars whirled away to Massachusetts avenue and over Harvard bridge into Cambridge, down Cambridge street to Somerville, and then spurred away for the road through Lynn, Salem, Newburyport, Portsmouth, Portland and on to the "Springs."

SOLDIER CONFESSES KILLING OVER GIRL

IN TOILS THROUGH WIFE'S JEALOUSY, PLEADS SELF-DEFENCE FOR CRIME.

NEW BEDFORD, July 20.—William C. Howard, a private in the Forty-second Company, Coast Artillery, stationed at Fort Rodman, was arrested today for the murder of Edward Dewhurst, a mill operative, in Hazelwood Park, this city, on the night of July 11, 1905. He confessed to the police, saying he shot Dewhurst in self-defence. Grace Sturtevant, twenty, of Lunds Corner, is held as a witness against him.

Jealousy on the part of Howard's wife, from whom he separated soon after they were married, led her to tell the secret of the murder to an insurance agent, who, in turn told the police. In this way a mystery nearly three years old baffled the police for three years was solved.

Jealous Over Girl.

Howard and Miss Sturtevant kept company while Howard was serving his first term of enlistment at Fort Rodman, and on the night the murder was committed they went to Hazelwood Park "the park from a band concert at the fort. They sat down on a bench to rest. Both saw Dewhurst crept up to them from behind with a revolver in his hand.

Presuming that he meant to shoot, Howard drew a gun and fired first. Three bullets were fired into Dewhurst's body. The body was left where it fell, and Howard and Miss Sturtevant went home. They agreed not to tell about the murder.

The following October Howard's enlistment expired and he went to Seeley County. There he first met his present wife. He told her about the murder and swore her to secrecy, he says, but soon they separated and Howard returned to New Bedford and re-enlisted. Mrs. Howard followed him.

"In Self-Defence."

Jealous of Miss Sturtevant, she told of the crime.

"I shot him," said Howard, after being arrested. "He had threatened us, though, and I shot in self-defence to protect myself up at the time, but I yielded to the entreaties of Miss Sturtevant not to. I had no idea the secret would ever come out."

Howard was arrested without a warrant sahd. "I was terribly frightened. I had to tell them I killed the murder, and I begged Will not to give himself up to the police. I saw Dewhurst with the revolver in his hand. I heard a shot and saw Dewhurst fall. I thought Howard shot him, but I did not see his revolver."

ONE DYING, OTHERS CRUSHED IN CAVE-IN

EARTH CRASHES INTO TRENCH UPON WORKMEN IN SOUTH BOSTON.

Peter Fox is dying, John Mulligan is severely injured and several other men were crushed and had narrow escapes on account of a cave-in of the walls of a trench which was being dug along Scott street, South Boston, to-day.

The cave-in was caused by an old line of sewer pipe which had been placed on Scott street previously and which had loosened the earth in that vicinity.

The presence of the sewer pipe was unknown. When the gang of workmen had dug down eight feet and was still working in earth supposed to be solid, there was a sudden loosening of the dirt at the bottom of the trench. The walls fell in and, in a second, several men were buried or half buried in the earth.

The men were working for Howard Bros., contractors, James Howard of that firm being in charge of the job.

When the cave-in came James Howard and Daniel Gillis, an employe not caught by the cave-in, grabbed shovels and dug frantically to release the other men.

Some of the men, only partially covered up, wrenched themselves loose and assisted Howard and Gillis.

Fox and Mulligan had been completely covered up. They were unconscious when taken out. Attempts were made to revive them on the ground, but these were futile. They were taken in an ambulance to the Carney Hospital. The hospital physicians say that Mulligan will live, but that Fox is fatally hurt, having sustained internal injuries in addition to being practically suffocated.

Fox is thirty-nine years old and lives at No. 12 Carlo street, Roxbury. Mulligan is forty years old and lives at No. 24 Batchelder street, Roxbury.

It Saves Time and Money.

That's the reason you should use P. & G. Naphtha Soap.

There is only one reason why you should use P. & G. Naphtha Soap and that reason is—IT SAVES TIME, TROUBLE AND MONEY.

It saves time because it enables you to do as much work in an hour as now takes two.

It saves trouble because, on account of the naphtha in it, three-fourths of the hard work over the wash-board is unnecessary.

It saves money because, with P. & G. Naphtha Soap, you use cold or lukewarm water and do not need to keep a hot fire going all day long to heat the water. This is, really, the greatest advantage of all because it means that you are able to work in a cool room.

The way to know you are getting the genuine P. & G. Naphtha Soap is this: The soap itself is white. The wrapper is blue and on the front of it appears very prominently the name of the brand: Procter & Gamble's (P. & G.) Naphtha Soap.

POSSE SEEKS ASSAILANT OF AGED WOMAN

Murderous Attack Upon Mrs. Josiah Low at Essex a Strange Mystery.

CITIZENS SCOUR WOODS

ESSEX, July 20.—Mrs. Josiah Low, seventy years old, was murderously attacked at her home on a lonely lane leading from the Ipswich road to-day.

Charles Patch was standing on an entrance about 500 yards from the Low home when he saw a man leave the barn and enter the house. A minute or two later he saw the man run from the house and disappear in the direction of Hamilton.

Fearing something was wrong, he ran quickly to the Low place and found Mrs. Low lying in a pool of blood on the kitchen floor.

Mrs. Low was in a semi-conscious state, and could give no account of the attack.

A physician who was hastily summoned stated that Mrs. Low was in a dangerous condition and directed that she be not questioned further until she had shown some signs of recovery.

Patch said that the man appeared to be of middle stature and was dressed in dark clothes and wore a cap.

A posse was formed at once and the woods and fields scoured in the direction of Hamilton. It is believed now that the man doubled on his tracks when he disappeared from the sight of the Low house and went in the direction of New Bury port.

Police in all the towns and cities about have been notified.

Mrs. Low was alone in the house at the time of the attack, her husband being in a distant field.

OFFICER SHOT BY BURGLAR

PROVIDENCE, July 20. — Patrolman Michael Reynolds of the Third police precinct in this city was shot and seriously wounded early to-day while battling with a burglar at No. 112 Congdon street.

Reynolds saw a man enter the yard and go to the tool shed adjoining the house. He suspected that the man was looking for instruments to aid him in getting into the house, and quickly entered the yard after him. The officer leveled his revolver at the man and told him to hold up his hands. The man did so, but a second afterward made a lung for the officer, and the two grappled, the burglar getting the policeman's revolver.

R. I. DELEGATES URGE PENSIONS FOR WIDOWS

WILL ASK INDEPENDENCE PARTY CONVENTION TO ENDORSE IDEA IN PLATFORM.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 20.—A plank recommending graduated pensions for widows with children will be urged by the Rhode Island delegates to the national convention of the Independence party, which that assembly meets in Chicago on July 27 and 28.

At a meeting of all the Rhode Island delegates and alternates at Boyden Heights yesterday Chairman Francis G. Meewether of the resolutions committee presented certain resolutions which the Rhode Island delegates will try to have inserted in the party platform.

Chief among these resolutions is the widows' pension provision. The preamble and attached resolutions are as follows:

Widows' Pensions Urged.

Recognizing the difficulty, amounting almost to an impossibility, on the part of the wage-earner under the most favorable conditions, at this time of high prices and reduced wages, to properly feed, clothe and educate his family if measured by a standard that would prevent a sound physical condition and an educated and intelligent brain, we further recognize the stupendous and almost hopeless task imposed on the wife and mother when death removes the husband and father, to provide even the necessities of life if the family be at all large; therefore, in the interests of society and our country, whose welfare demands of its citizenship well-nourished bodies and educated brains, be it resolved

That we, the Rhode Island delegates to the convention of the Independence party, recommend the adoption by our party of a plank declaring in favor of a graduated pension to all widows left with children dependent for their support and education upon her efforts and skill, to the end that the well-being of our country, dependent upon the home influence and the nurture and intelligence of its people, be that much further cared for.

After this preamble and resolution were presented by Chairman Meewether, it was decided to await the convention before taking final action. There four Rhode Island delegates will take whatever steps seem advisable to secure the adoption of this resolution by the convention.

Preliminary Work Finished.

Yesterday's meeting completes the preliminary work of the Rhode Island delegation. Henry H. Dunnell is the chairman of the meeting. Reports of various committees, including that on platform for the national convention, were heard. One of the most important reports was that of Chairman James H. O'Neil for the committee on transportation, who reported arrangements whereby the Rhode Islanders will meet the Bay State members at Worcester, leaving here at 12:30 o'clock, Saturday noon, July 25.

The Rhode Island delegates to the convention are James H. O'Neil, Francis G. Meewether, James J. Dunn, Thomas F. Reeves, Percy J. Cantwell, Peter J. O'Connor, William M. Pearson and Arthur Smith.

A pleasant instance of goodfellowship occurred at the meeting when, on behalf of the delegates and alternates Chairman O'Neil of the transportation committee presented Proprietor Arthur Dewey of Boyden Heights Grounds a gold watch fob, at the same time thanking him for courtesies extended to the meeting and expressing the good will of the gathering toward the recipient of the gift. Mr. Dewey made a brief and fitting response.

BOY'S DROWNING BARES MYSTERIOUS ROMANCE

SPURNED BY RICH AND LOVELY MOTHER, NEGRESS REARED HAROLD COFFIN.

By the tragic death of little Harold Coffin, twelve years old, who was drowned in the Charles River, near West Boston bridge, there developed to-day a remarkable mystery, hinging upon the identity of the lad's mother. It is the mystery of a wealthy woman, who left the child soon after its birth, when she herself was a beautiful young girl, to be reared by a colored woman.

If this woman is living to-day, she may claim the right to bury the lad, but if she does, this sad privilege will be denied her, because Mrs. W. H. Delaney, the foster-mother of the boy, declares that no power on earth could separate her from her little charge—even in death.

Mrs. Delaney is an unusual woman. She is about sixty years old, and in early life was a maid to Mrs. Robert T. Lincoln, wife of the son of Abraham Lincoln, and before the daughter of James Holland, at that time Secretary of the Interior, and later a senator from Iowa.

In Lincoln's Service.

Mrs. Delaney was highly entrusted and refined. She was in the Lincolns' service for twelve years. After that she came to Boston, where she opened a home at No. 15 Blossom court for the adoption of children.

Here is her own story of the coming of little Harold Coffin to her home:

"It was twelve years ago, in 1896, I have cause to remember it distinctly, because the little lad became like a son to me and I learned to love him with all the tender love of a mother. I recall the night well. Dr. Charles D. Parker, who lived at No. 47 Chambers street, summoned me to his home. He led me into a dark, cold room, where lay the little one with his mother. The child was about three weeks old.

"He asked me if I would care for the little one. I promptly agreed and took the child home that very night. The mother, strangely enough, parted with it without the slightest protest, and in a very unnatural way.

Mother Very Beautiful.

"I recall her very clearly. Her face is as fresh in my memory as on that night. She was only a girl—possibly seventeen years old. She was extremely beautiful. She had wonderful auburn hair and an exquisite pink complexion. In every particular, appearance, speech, clothing, jewelry—in everything she was the daughter of a wealthy and a refined household.

"There was a woman there caring for her—a woman who, they told me, was her mother. But I was sure that neither mother. This woman was not in the same class with the girl-mother. There was no other conclusion than that she was a servant in the household whence came the girl.

"They gave me a name—it was Coffin; they said the mother's name was Fannie Coffin. But I am sure that that was not correct.

"At all events I took the child home, and was liberally paid for its care. The mother came to my house a week after I took the little boy. She acted in a most unnatural way. She glanced the child over as one might glance at a dog in a bench show, and remarked:

Mother Spurns Her Babe.

"'Why, isn't he a homely little child!'

"This angered me, but I said nothing. I have remembered it, though. She said that she would send some clothing for the baby from Andover, where she said she was going with the woman she called her mother. I did get some clothes, very well made and expensive, and they were marked with the name Andover.

"Two months later she again visited the little one, but made no suggestion about taking it away. That was the last time she ever visited the baby.

"At no time there was some correspondence between us, but Dr. Parker always wrote my letters and addressed them himself, so I never learned the correct name or address of the family. And Dr. Parker and his wife are now dead.

"They sent me money, very liberally, for the care of the child for the first three months. Then that ceased, and since then the little one has been mine—my son; my fatherless child, a natural mother.

"I advertised the boy for adoption, but those who looked at him said he was too homely and took weak. Their ideas were wrong, for between five and six years I assumed out into a splendid, handsome, manly little fellow of refined manners and slightly bred traits. He was my son. I loved him, I had intended him to be my heir. I was a comparatively rich woman, and when he grew up, I intended he should have it and enjoy the fruit of his home.

"I Can Bury Him."

"But now he's dead, and all I can do is to bury him.

"Once a man claiming to be a representative of the R. F. C. S. tried to induce him to leave the boy with an colored, but he would not. He said he loved me as his mother.

"Two years ago, George N. Faught, an artist, seventy years old, who is much devoted to children, took an interest in him through Andrew Freeman of the Salvation Army, for whom the boy often worked. Mr. Faught took him to his home at Hull and said he was a splendid, well-behaved boy, with the best of manners and dispositions."

City Hall birth record No. 117, for 1896 shows that on January 23 of that year a child, who was given the name of Harold Coffin, was born at No. 47 Chambers street. The only person named was "Margaret Coffin, birthplace Andover, mother." At the State House, there is no record of any Margaret Coffin having been born in Andover, or elsewhere in Massachusetts, either seventeen years ago or at any time five years from then.

Little Harold is mourned through the neighborhood where he lived, for he was the most loved lad in Blossom court.

THOUSANDS AT PARKS, GUESTS OF AMERICAN

Members of Free Outing Club Enjoying the Season's Best Attractions.

NOVELTIES AT EVERY TURN

Some of the best attractions of the season are being offered this week at the leading Summer resorts and amusement parks of New England to be visited by the Boston Sunday American Free Outing Club. Thousands to-day are guests of the SUNDAY AMERICA at Wonderland Park, Paragon Park, Unity Park, Canobie Lake Park, Crescent Park and Lexington Park. There will be other outings during the week.

Two acres of ground at Canobie Lake Park are being devoted to-day for the reception of six deer, which are on their way from Fitchburg, and which will prove a big attraction for the children. Canobie has its full quota of attractions, but this is the first time live stock has been introduced.

Scotch Pipers' Band.

The Scotch pipers' band from Halifax, is proving a big drawing card at Paragon, and Ferari's wild animal show, pronounced one of the best ever viewed in New England, is keeping the jungle crowded to the doors at every performance. Thousands, with SUNDAY AMERICAN tickets, have been flocking to the park all day from every direction.

Lexington Park, with its fifty acres of pine woodland, is entertaining one of the largest crowds of the season this afternoon. Especially interesting among the attractions are the big animal show and the vaudeville performance in the Rustic Theatre. The vaudeville bill includes several "headliners" which played long engagements last season at prominent playhouses.

There is a scream a minute in the Human Laundry at Unity Park, East Providence, R. I. It takes twenty minutes to go through, so there are twenty screams for every visitor. The Jitney Theatre is proving a big attraction and the Mollycoddles, a fun factory, is crowded all the time.

Mammoth Shutes.

At Crescent Park the new attractions include the mammoth chutes, the Scenic toboggan and the Katzenjammer Castle. This park has a grandstand that accommodates 10,000 people, and there is boating and bathing. It is one of the largest amusement parks in New England.

Wonderland Park has a variety of new attractions this week. They are all high grade attractions, too, and judging by the crowd on hand to-day the park is going to do a record business this week.

SAVE FIREMEN FROM FLAMES

Hoseman Edward F. Locke of Engine Company No. 4 was injured and nearly electrocuted by touching live wires, two hundred thousand volts strong, when Ladder No. 14 and a trolley car, and several firemen were overcome by smoke and the fumes of burning teas, coffees and spices in a battle with a fierce blaze in the store of the Great Ceylon Tea Company, in Elm street, to-day.

The flames had been raging for fully fifteen minutes before an alarm was sounded by Captain O'Brien of Engine No. 25.

Wolfe Greenburg, the owner of the store, which was ruined, says that the fire was started by the explosion of an oil stove on which he was cooking coffee.

Captain O'Brien was overcome by the smoke and fumes of burning spices. Ladder No. 14, from Fort Port square, was being driven by William Boyd through Adams square at a fast clip when the ladders crashed into a car filled with passengers, who became panicky, but escaped without injury. In the shock of the collision hurled the two horses to the pavement. A half a dozen firemen were rendered half senseless by their comrades. Among them were Chief Fox, District Chief Garrity, Lieutenant McMahon and Driver Joseph Connelly.

FEARS GIRL IS PRISONER

Believing that pretty nineteen-year-old Esther Shirer, who has been missing from her home at No. 10 Davis street since Thursday, has been spirited away, and is now being held a prisoner in a house of ill-fame, Benjamin Shirer of No. 11 Revere street to-day asked the Boston police to institute a search for the girl, who is his cousin, in the lodging houses in the South End.

Thursday evening she told Mrs. Anole Shapiro, with whom she lives, that she was going out to get a glass of soda at a nearby drug store. Esther took ten cents and left the house, and since that time she has not been seen by her friends. Friday morning Mrs. Shapiro found the girl had vanished, and the police were at once notified.

AIRSHIP SCOUTS FOR THE ARMY

WASHINGTON, July 20.—"In the next war that is fought the advance column will be made up of balloons and airships." This is the belief freely expressed by army and navy officers here. For this particular reason the army balloon tests which are to begin at Fort Myer next week will receive much attention in military circles. It is understood that several of the military attaches of the diplomatic corps will be at Fort Myer to take notes and report to their respective governments.

One of the most important results of the Fort Myer tests probably will be the establishment of an aeronautic corps in the navy.

SLAYER'S HAIR BLAZES AT DOUBLE EXECUTION

GRUESOME SIGHT IN SING SING PRISON AS ROGERS AND LAUDERIO DIE IN CHAIR.

OSSINING, N. Y., July 20.—When Charles H. Rogers and Angelo Lauderio were electrocuted in Sing Sing prison early to-day flames flashed from the electrodes on Lauderio's head and an odor of burning hair pervaded the room.

The spectacle was gruesome to the witnesses, but the officials declared that the execution was painless.

Rogers was the murderer of Fred and Willis Oliver and Alice Ingersoll, a little girl, at Hewlett's station, Long Island, in December, 1905. At the same time he made desperate love-making upon Mrs. Ingersoll, mother of Alice.

In December, 1906, Lauderio shot Dan Michele D'Andrea, a wealthy Bronx contractor, whom he had tried unsuccessfully to blackmail.

LOST FISHERMAN FOUND

NEWPORT, R. I., July 20. — The steamer Katandin, which left Boston for Charleston and Jacksonville reported to the Naval cruiser Sloats Lightship that she picked up two fishermen of the schooner Dora Eaton fifteen miles northeast of Pollock Rip Lightship.

NO THREAT RECEIVED BY MISS O'REILLY

Miss Mary Rosie O'Reilly of Boston has been assigned confidentially by the report that she had received a letter of a threatening nature in connection with her work along the lines taken up by the lodging house commission.

It may be stated that Miss O'Reilly received no such letter. In speaking of the matter to a reporter of this newspaper she said:

"I am not a member of the lodging house Commission, but I know that it is doing a most beneficial work, in a heroic manner. I think that the public should give them all the help in their power and not hamper them by any report of this character."

RYAN MEETING CAUSES SCARE IN BRYAN CAMP

Nebraskan to Rush "Trusty" to Yellowstone Park to Ascertain Doings.

ALL OPPOSED NOMINATION

LINCOLN, Neb., July 20.—Some of Mr. Bryan's friends are beginning to manifest particular interest in the gathering at this time at the Yellowstone National Park of numerous Democrats of national renown who are known to have been opposed to the Nebraskan leader's nomination.

Among those now at the Yellowstone Park or on the way there, are Judge Alton B. Parker of New York, Roger C. Sullivan and John D. Hopkins of Illinois and Paul R. Cravath of New York, Thomas F. Ryan's chief counsel. Others are en route.

It is feared by Bryan men here that there is a good deal more than a mere coincidence in the assembling at a remote resort in the Far West of so many men who were opposed to the Democratic nominee.

None of Mr. Bryan's trusted friends or lieutenants, it is said, are among the visitors to Yellowstone Park at this time, although it is understood that one or more of them are preparing to go there soon to to ascertain if possible what the men known to have been opposed to Bryan are doing.

In this connection it is recalled that when Mr. Bryan was in the East he closed on his way back from his trip around the world he was called on at the hotel by Col. George Harvey, editor of the Harper publications, who proposed to him that he appoint a competent time and place to meet Thomas F. Ryan in Europe before departing home.

The latter declined outright to meet the New York financier in Europe or on other terms or under any circumstances than he would meet any other person who might desire to see him.

TAMMANY DELEGATES MEETING WITH NICK AND THE FAIR ALICE

COLORADO SPRINGS, July 20.—The Tammany delegates who have just returned from a visit to Yellowstone Park, report that a bully good story of his meeting with "Our Alice" and Nick Longworth.

Three days ago the Tammany Tigers were making the park echo with their war whoops when suddenly they came to a halt at a stage coach. A vision in a tan colored bathing suit was seen to arise and give the familiar shout, "Tammany, Tammany."

"We didn't know then that it was the President's daughter and we responded right lustily. Before we knew it everybody in that other stage coach was shouting "Tammany," and Nick Longworth was the loudest of the bunch.

When he met face to face and saw the girl was the President's daughter he made our best acknowledgements and gave three cheers for her and Nick.

GETS DIVORCE TO WED MAN; THEN IS JILTED

CHICAGO, July 18.—Averring she got a divorce less than a week ago for the purpose of marrying D. E. Mc Clintock at his suggestion, and that he was since refused to wed her, Mrs. Anna A. Dowhower, yesterday filed a breach of promise suit for $15,000 against McClintock.

In her complaint Mrs. Dowhower sets out that she was deserted by her former husband some time ago, whereupon McClintock sought her hand in marriage, telling her that if she would get a divorce he would pay the costs. She says this proposal was made in December.

Mrs. Dowhower says that as soon as the decree was granted she reminded McClintock of his promise and that he broke the engagement, using profane language in emphasizing his feelings in the matter.

July 22, the Indomitable due at Quebec bearing the Prince of Wales and his staff.

July 23—The fetes formally opened by the Prince. Premier Laurier delivers an address, the historic pageant, probably the most interesting of any that have ever been seen in North America, and as wonderful as the recent Oxford pageant in England, and the fleets to be illuminated in the evening.

July 24—Dedication of the Plains of Abraham and the field of St. Foye as a national park, military parade in the afternoon.

July 25—Naval review of the ships of England, France and the United States.

July 27—Solemn pontifical mass Catholic mass on the Plains of Abraham and review by the English fleet.

July 27—Sham parade of 10,000 sailors from the army in the afternoon a representation of Wolfe's landing.

July 28—Children's day; daylight fireworks on the Plains of Abraham.

July 29—Departure of the British squadron for Halifax and Bermuda. The French and American vessels leave on the 30th.

Notable Early Arrivals.

Among the earliest arrivals for the celebration are Lord Roberts and the two Duke of Norfolk, who represent the Empress of Ireland. The Earl of Rosebery, representing the City of New England; George Wolfe, descendant of General Wolfe, and Dr. Pirie, the Bishop of Aberdeen, Cecil Murray, M. P., descendant of Montcalm, and Lord Lovatt, representing the Fraser Highlanders, who first scaled the Heights in 1759, were met by a delegation of officials on the 200 foot below Chateau Frontenac.

Yachts are already out for official duties by the Governor-General, the British and the French Admirals, the Lieutenant Governor and others.

The many visitors already here are thoroughly impressed with the beauties of ancient, old Quebec. One of the prettiest sights is on a portion of the Plains of Abraham, one of the highest locations on the Heights of Quebec, which overlooks the river for 200 feet below.

City of Tents on Plain.

On the summit of this plain there has been built a city of tents. It is erected on wooden flooring, with a complete system of electric lighting, water and drainage. Here hundreds of the visitors will be housed.

Then there is the delightful and antique Dufferin Terrace, built by Lord Dufferin Terrace, the majestic St. Lawrence; the Heights of Levis, the Isle of Orleans, and the great champlain statue and the beautiful Grand Battery Promenade, are a thousand other spots and things of interest.

3 MEN NEAR DEATH BY GAS IN A MANHOLE

Foreman of Worcester Sewer Gang Overcome Trying to Save Comrades.

WORCESTER, July 20.—Three workmen were overcome by sewer gas and nearly died to-day in a manhole, ten feet below the street surface, while making sewer repairs at the corner of Franklin and Grafton streets. One of them, Frank Broderick, foreman on the work, was stricken while trying to rescue the others. All three were hauled out with ropes, unconscious.

The gang consisted four men, Anthony Broderick, Mathio Taxiotto, twenty-three, of No. 5 Vernon street, and Thomas O'Brien, forty-five, of No. 7 Worth street, attended the manhole and Mark Lacroix, thirty-six, of No. 80 East Central street, and Broderick, who lives at No. 29 Barber street, remained above.

At the bottom of the manhole there were two feet of water. The men had been at work but a few minutes when they felt themselves being overcome and started up. Taxiotto was first on the ladder and when about half way to the street he was overcome and fell backward, carrying O'Brien down with him.

The force of the fall rendered O'Brien unconscious. Broderick, who was followed by his fellow-workmen and while tying ropes about them he, too, was overcome. Seconds seemed help and with difficulty the two were raised to the street. They were attended by R. H. Goldthwaite and after being revived were sent to the hospital in ambulances.

It is not expected that any of them will die.

CLERGY BALK SOCIETY BRIDAL

NEWPORT, R. I., July 20.—The wedding of Herbert M. Harriman and Mrs. Mary Brady Hall is expected to take place here just as soon as Mrs. Hall is well enough and if a clergyman can be found who is willing to perform the ceremony. So far, no Newport minister can be found who is cautious or even willing to perform the ceremony, as both Harriman and Mrs. Hall have been divorced.

Henry Harriman, as he is everywhere known here, has been at Mrs. Hall's Clay Pond villa most of the time, and Mrs. Hall, Sands and Mrs. Roberts Sedgwick were other callers.

Early in the forenoon Drs. Bull and Dalton called professionally on Mrs. Hall, who is reported to be quite ill, but who is sure to be well enough to be married soon. No marriage license is to be taken out from City Hall until the services of a minister are assured.

BOSTON MAN KILLS WOMAN

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 20.—William B. Hill formerly of Boston, murder, suicide and polygamist. This is the record of the aged veteran who shot down the woman supposed to be his wife at the Kinsbell Hotel, according to his comrades at the Soldiers' Home here.

The police have also learned that Hill had a wife and son in the Bay State city before the war, but left them at the time of his enlistment in 1861 never returning until a few years ago, when the son, a practicing lawyer, denied the father

BATHING MAIDS' TATTOO MARKS STIR UP BEACH

Spectators at Atlantic City Are Startled by Sweeping Adoption of the New Fad.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 20.—Miss Squid, ex-Alderman and expert handler of bathing suits, is called to bid fair to bring fame to her fathers and brothers of a score of fair bathing beauties, since the latter proudly appeared on the beach to-day, with tattoo marks on their fair arms and shoulders.

Spectators perched in beach chairs gasped when they saw the first girl swing up the beach bearing on the rounded upper arm an entwined heart and dagger, and the surprise became a shock when it was discovered that other bathing maidens had adopted the fad of having their arms marked with tattoo devices.

At first glance it was supposed that the marks, which ranged from entwined hearts pierced with arrows, were merely painted on, but when it was discovered that the marks were needled in and practically indelible, there was a general stampede among parents to discover the artist, and a search for "Jim" Squid.

It is said that the old salterman had a small shop in the basement of one of the boardwalk, and that he has been in several hundred dollars in carrying out his "art."

DROWNING MAN BARELY SAVED

While attempting to swim to the raft off the L Street bathe, Christopher Whalen of No. 74 Lawrence street, Charlestown, was attacked by cramps and sank. He was seen by Lieutenant Charles Hickey of the Volunteer Life Saving Crew, who swam to the spot where the drowning man sank and dived for him.

Whalen is a heavy man, and Lieutenant Hickey was having great difficulty in keeping him afloat when Life Saver Jerome Reiley, who was on the raft, swam to his assistance, and together they got the unconscious man on the raft and resuscitated him.

Later Whalen so far recovered as to leave for his home alone

Corey, Steel Trust Head Home; Wife Stays in France

MRS. MABELLE GILMAN COREY.

NEW YORK, July 20.—William Ellis Corey, president of the United States Steel Corporation, back in New York after ten weeks spent abroad, but his wife, who was Mabelle Gilman, an actress, remained in France. She is to return next month, it is said.

Mr. Corey disclaims any knowledge of an international steel trust, or even a working agreement among the steelmasters of the world. The reports that Russia was about to purchase an enormous quantity of steel rails in this country, as well as millions of dollrs' worth of material for a great railroad system, appeared to be news to Mr. Corey.

"There is a marked improvement since the nominations in the condition of American securities on the other side left no doubt in his mind that the steel president.

Mr. Corey said the restoration of confidence in American securities on the other side left no doubt in his mind that the tendency from now on would bring this country back to the prosperous conditions of a year ago.

CHICAGO WINS BALLOON RACE

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 20.—All the balloons which started from St. Paul in an endurance contest to-day have landed. The pioneers was the last balloon to report. It landed at Watrous, Minn. The Chicago, which won both endurance and distance prizes, is owned by C. A. Coey of Chicago and came down near Blooming Prairie, Minn., seventy-three miles south of St. Paul.

A. Leo Stevens, director of the race, in explaining the failure of the aeronauts to sail greater distances, said that the lifting power of the gas was not as great as they had expected, and that consequently the balloons were unable to carry the amount of ballast necessary for a long flight.

A NEW ELECTRIC SCIENCE

A megaphone intensifies the human voice by turning all of the sound in the direction you want it to go.

That's what proper reflectors do for electric lights. There are different reflectors for different conditions.

It takes knowledge to know which to use for a particular purpose. This knowledge forms part of a recently developed science called Illuminating Engineering.

By intensifying the light in the direction in which it is most useful you can either save money or get more light for the same cost.

There are many other ways of improving lighting conditions.

We shall have ready September first a new Department of Illuminating Engineering for those patrons who want to use it.

Helping one customer means getting new ones, and with reduced electric rates (12 cents) we need more customers to compensate for a large loss of revenue.

'TOM' CURLEY IN NEW CLUB; WILL FIGHT TAMMANY

Now Seeks Full Control of Ward 17 in Clash with Alderman Jim.

MAY CONTEST FOR BOARD

The breach between Alderman James M. Curley and ex-Senator Thomas F. Curley, for years the Damon and Pythias of Boston politics, was widened to-day when the adherents of Tom announced that a new Tammany Club—or rather anti-Tammany Club—will be formed in Ward 17. It will be war to a finish in the ward. Headquarters for the new organization will be established this week on Hampden street, Roxbury, and slates will be made up for the various State and city offices to be filled by the ward next Fall.

Alderman Curley to-day announced that he will not enter the race for Democratic nomination for Congress in the Tenth District. "There are enough after it now," he said. The adherents of the ex-Senator are trying to persuade him to be a candidate for the Board this year against the alderman, whose campaigns he has heretofore managed. City Hall gossip to-day had it that Alderman Jim will not leave Ward 17, even to go to Congress, while the faction headed by Tom Curley continues the war against him.

Tom Curley and ex-Representative Connor and Dunphy will head the new political club in the ward. The name for the organization has not yet been decided on. "Tomahawk" seems to be the favored name among the chiefs, however. "Barnacles" is the name suggested by Alderman Jim.

LANDMARK IS TO BE RAZED

The Hub will soon lose another land mark when the building at No. 20 Temple place, formerly occupied as a residence by Dr. John C. Hemmeter, is demolished to make room for a modern business structure.

For some time this building, which is of brick and four stories in height, has been leased and used by the Soroids Shoe Company, which is now building a clearance sale of shoes, footwear preparatory to the tearing down of the well known structure.

It belongs to the Dunn estate and has been a silent witness to the astonishing changes and rapid progress in Boston and Temple place itself, which is a historic thoroughfare, known as Hamilton place. Afterwards it became Temple place, and Allen, easterly from to Common.

The building now occupied by the Soroids Company has seen nearly every one of its neighbors give way to the onward march of commercial progress, and now it in turn will be demolished. The handsome new patrons of the well known shoe firm who have in the past had the advantage of the bargains offered expressed regret at the old block must go. Many of them are prone to become reminiscent on the subject in Temple place.

DESSERT TAKES PLACE OF CANDIES

Some people like a certain dessert sometimes; other people like it all the time, but everybody and all the people to like it all the time—unless it be Nabisco Sugar Wafers, for who has never partaken of them? This luscious, palate-pleasing confection is the ideal dessert, answering all functions, whether as a dessert or to be nibbled at between meals. Nabisco Sugar Wafers take the place of candies and sweets, blending delightfully with the pure fruit juices and happily completing either a sumptuous dinner or an afternoon tea.

LIGHTNING FIRES CAMBRIDGE SCHOOL

Lightning caused a fire to break out early this morning in the third floor of the Shepard School, Reed street, North Cambridge. The blaze was readily extinguished and the damage was not more than a few hundreds of dollars. The bolt struck the flag pole and caused a flash in the third story which ignited, probably for more than an hour, when it was discovered.

NEW PARTY TO MEET AT CHICAGO NEXT WEEK

NATIONAL COMMITTEE WILL HOLD SESSION SATURDAY; DELEGATES GATHER MONDAY.

NEW YORK, July 20.—A week from to-day the Independence party men will gather in Chicago to take part in their first national convention for the purpose of naming a ruling ticket and otherwise carrying out their plans for political independence. Presidential candidates are already talked of, and many States have their favorite sons. Massachusetts and Rhode Island have declared for Thomas L. Hisgen; Georgia, the home State of Colonel John Temple Graves, has declared for him; Indiana is for C. F. S. Neal, Illinois for Howard S. Taylor, New York for Lemuel Bolles Lyon, Iowa for Charles A. Walsh, California for Hugh McManus, Alabama for M. W. Howard.

During this week members of the National Committee of the party will get together and will discuss and prepare for the work of the convention, and Saturday next there will be a meeting of the entire National Committee in Chicago.

Hearst Delegate at Large.

It is expected that William Randolph Hearst will arrive from Europe in time to attend this committee meeting on Saturday. Mr. Hearst, as chairman of the national committee, may call the session to order at its first session Monday and will, of course, take an active part in such committee work or other duties as may be assigned to him by the convention. He is a delegate at large from New York.

To-night at 8.30 o'clock, the delegates and alternates from the counties of New York, Kings, Queens, Richmond, Nassau, Suffolk and Westchester will meet at State headquarters, No. 1,789 Broadway, corner of 57th street, where they will assemble the Presidential electors and a large number of other Independence party men, who intend going to Chicago for the convention.

State Ticket in New York.

It was decided with keen enthusiasm that a State convention of the Independence party should be held here in the Fall. At that time a full State ticket will be put in the field.

Mayor Gaynor of Lincoln is enthusiastic at the prospects of the new party in connection and over its stand for home rule. He said to-day in speaking of his platform:

Connecticut offers a great field for the Independence party and it will make a great campaign here this Fall.

The plank in favor of abolishing State police is the principal issue in the two voters of the State. The State police have done a great deal to demoralize Connecticut more than any other agency in years. The cities and towns have had power to form and enforce them, but the State police have upset home rule. The Independence party offers an opportunity to return it."

"THE THIEF"

Bernstein's Great Story, Novelized by Thompson Buchanan—By Permission of Charles Frohman.

Synopsis

M. AND MME. LAGARDES are a wealthy couple spending the summer at their chateau just outside of Paris. Mme. Lagardes is waiting to be very right, and in the habit of getting her husband to sign checks when he comes home from his office, and brings to her in cash, which she uses carelessly in the drawer of a secretary in her bedroom.

Noticing that his wife's checks are unusually large, M. Lagardes asks her what she is doing with so much money. She says she gives it to charity, which he thinks is a good thing, but tells her to go and find out for herself. Mme. Lagardes is amused and can be induced for it to no very exept that it has been stolen.

They try the secretary and find that the lock is not at all broken, and find the marks of a knife blade on it, showing that it has been tampered with.

Who could be the thief?

Suddenly they accuse Mme. Lagardes's maid, Therese. Mme. Lagardes is sure it is Justin, M. Lagardes's valet.

Besides these servants, there are also at the chateau Fernand, M. Lagardes's son by a former marriage, and M. and Mme. Verano, who are old friends of M. and Mme. Lagardes.

Mme. Verano, a beautiful woman of twenty-three, though her vanity and love of flattery has been the subject of invitations with Fernand Lagardes, a boy of eighteen, who is desperately in love with her, and who has been snubbed by her. Fernand is attempting to commit suicide as assistance, and she ridicules him and accuses him of cowardice after telling him he must not be so melodramatic. He starts for the race track to gamble on the races.

CHAPTER III.

"Thief One Near and Dear."

MONSIEUR looked up from his account of a crisis in Morocco very irritably.

"Yes, yes," he said. "Don't stand there like a dumb man. What is it? Who is dead?"

"It is no murder, monsieur."

"The Bank of France has been robbed?"

"No, monsieur."

"The President assassinated?"

"No, monsieur."

"I am wanted to save the life of the Czar?"

"No, monsieur."

Monsieur Gondoin brought his hand down upon the table angrily.

"Then, Francois, my good, dear Francois—you blockhead, Francois—attend to it yourself."

Francois advanced a step hesitatingly.

"But, monsieur—"

Gondoin threw down his paper in despair.

"Francois you are hopeless. Never, no, never, will you be the second greatest detective in France." Then wearily, "Go on. Tell me your little trouble. Has our fiery little Count been spending too much of his rich American wife's money? Does she want to know something of his left-hand friends? Pest! What does she expect?"

"It Is Raymond Lagardes"

"No, monsieur."

The rebuked Francois Guillard, of whom the Central Office in New York and the famous Scotland Yard spoke reverently, altogether pleaded.

"The Czar is safe. It is not a rich American heiress in trouble. It is a Frenchman, the great millionaire, Monsieur Raymond Lagardes."

Little Gondoin fairly bounced out of his chair. His eyes snapped; his white imperial twitched with rage. He brought his clenched fist down upon the table with a resounding bang.

"Francois, you fool," Francois, you fool, bloodhead, pig. What has happened to him, my good Lagardes, my old friend, my comrade in arms. I have not seen him for twenty years, but I still love him as a brother. Tell me, tell me quickly, block-head. For ten minutes I have been trying to make you talk. Speak, you fool."

"He is not dead, monsieur."

"Fool, did I say he was dead?"

"He is not wife, I believe?"

"The second Madame Lagardes is well, monsieur."

"Of course, she is well! Never did I see such an idiot."

"It is money, monsieur. He has been robbed of a great sum. He would see you."

M. Gondoin heaved a long sigh.

"M. Lagardes to see me," he said, looking at Francois with almost pathetic contempt.

"The second richest man in France would see me on important personal business, and you, Francois, keep him waiting outside and make him tell what he wishes when he should impart that knowledge only to me, to Gondoin, the second detective?"

Francois lost no time in opening the door and ushering in M. Lagardes. Raymond entered hurriedly.

He was pale and troubled, for since the first discovery of the theft of money from the old secretaire the day before the rickety drawer and night been opened five hundred francs taken.

Moreover, he had watched carefully, and he felt sure that no stranger had been even about the place. Mme. Lagardes and he had again discussed the identity of the thief all of its possible phases.

Sure Therese Was Culprit

He was assured in his own mind that the maid, Therese, must have taken the money. Mme. Lagardes was quite as positive that Justin, his valet, was the thief, for had not Justin that very day appeared with a new pair of boots that cost ten francs? So she was sure he must have stolen at least five hundred.

M. Gondoin received his visitor with arms outstretched.

"My dear M. Lagardes, I have not seen you for twenty years, but I still remember our old friendship."

Raymond returned his embrace with some warmth.

"You, yes, Gondoin. I remember. I remember when we were almost boys in the regiment, and were called Damon and Pythias. I never suspected that you would become the great Monsieur Gondoin, about whom the world speaks and every criminal fears."

Monsieur Gondoin puffed out his velvet-coat proudly.

"Yes, monsieur, I am he. How can I serve monsieur?"

Raymond pulled out a little memorandum. "I will be brief, Monsieur Gondoin, brief and business like. Yesterday I discovered that 20,000 francs had been stolen from the drawer of an old escritoire in the boudoir of Madame Lagardes."

Monsieur Gondoin pulled at his imperial thoughtfully.

"Madame Lagardes keeps 20,000 francs at one time in the drawer of an old escritoire" he asked, with a lift of his eyebrows.

Raymond drew himself up with some haughtiness.

"I would remind you, Monsieur Gondoin, that Madame Lagardes happens to be perhaps the second richest woman in France to-day."

The great detective bowed respectfully. "I understand, monsieur."

Raymond permitted himself to unbend a little.

"But she does not keep 20,000 francs there often, monsieur. The thefts have extended, I think, over a period of three months."

Monsieur Gondoin pursed his lips professionally. "Ah!" he said.

"And since that discovery yesterday," continued Raymond, "five hundred francs more have been taken."

"Marked, of Course?"

"Oh!" ejaculated Monsieur Gondoin, and then added quickly, to cover his surprise: "It was marked money, of course?"

The minister shook his head sorrowfully.

"I forgot that."

The great detective smiled in a patronizing fashion.

"Of course, my dear monsieur, you could not be expected to remember everything. But you have done the next best thing—rather the best thing of all. You have come to me."

"Well, then, you can find the thief?" asked Raymond, eagerly.

"In twenty years I have never failed," came the haughty response.

"When will you begin?" asked the millionaire.

Monsieur Gondoin nodded toward a chair.

"At once, monsieur. Tell me your story. Then, as rapidly as possible, the millionaire detailed the story of his discovery of the theft. He told how, quite by accident, they had learned the facts after he had reproached his wife for spending so much money.

"I have been accustomed to cash my wife's checks at the office," he said.

"Several times she gave me very large sums. On such occasions I always brought home several toulleuns of bills, a number of large notes, some small notes and smaller currency. She has always thrown it over these bills in this drawer. Now, I am convinced that her maid, Therese, must have been aware of this. The sly minx has had her eye on my valet, Justin, for a long time. She must have seen it and taken the money to get a dot for herself so as to entice Justin."

The detective shook his head wisely. "Ah, yes," he said, "and madame is quite as sure, I wager, that your valet Justin took the money."

"Why, how do you know that?" exclaimed Raymond in surprise.

The experienced thief-catcher smiled deprecatingly.

"It is always that way, monsieur. Take my word for it, and I have been in the profession twenty years. I entered just after I left the regiment."

"Then you do not think that Therese took the money?"

"I do not say, Monsieur, that Therese is honest. I do not say that Justin is honest. I do not say that anybody is honest. Monsieur, I have been a thief-taker twenty years. One finds out many things in twenty years in this profession. But I say, Monsieur, that let the thief be whom he may, some one will, Gondoin will do."

Such confidence could not be resisted. Monsieur Lagardes drew a long breath of relief.

"Thank you, Monsieur Gondoin," he said. "I already feel that the mystery is solved. How will you do it?"

The great detective drew his hands across his brow thoughtfully.

"First," he said, "I must appear at your house as a guest."

Monsieur Lagardes straightened in his chair almost unconsciously. The second richest man in France was not accustomed to entertain in his home a police officer, even though that officer be the foremost detective in Europe.

Gondoin saw, and with his shrewdness interpreted the unconscious attitude of the rich man. In turn he drew himself up with haughtiness that exceeded even that of Lagardes.

"I did not ask for this commission, monsieur," he said icily.

"When, last year, I saved the life of the king of Spain on the very day of his marriage his own English bride thanked me with tears in her eyes. At that court I was a chevalier of France. I wear the cross of the Legion of honor, monsieur. I am at the head of my profession, and I ask nothing of any man."

To Be Continued To-morrow.

Twice-a-Year Stock-Taking Sale

READ THE FOLLOWING EXPLANATION

Prices might seem incredible, so we hasten to explain. Every store takes stock twice a year to find out how much profit made; how much money invested. Every well-regulated store turns as much stock as possible into cash before inventory, by cutting prices. Sometimes the price cuts are greater than others—depends on conditions. This time conditions leave stocks heavier than usual. Means better selections, lower prices. Have to be cut deep to move heavy stocks quickly.

HERE IS THE GENUINE "BRINKLEY GIRL' IN REAL LIFE

The Betty with Her Parasol

A Brinkley Bathing Girl

Anabel Whitford as a "Betty"

THE "Brinkley Girl" is real. Her reality is not a question; it is an established fact.

At the New York Theatre roof, where Florence Ziegfeld, jr., presents "The Follies of 1908," you will find "Brinkley Girls" on the stage—living, breathing, beautiful, very real—posing in the graceful attitudes which the gifted young woman artist has made familiar to readers of the AMERICAN.

They are not freakish, these "Brinkley Girls"; they are natural, human, girlish, fascinating, and as attractive that they than merely suggest the "Brinkley Girl," here is the most popular feature of a remarkably entertaining Summer show.

These living models impersonate, with appropriate scenery and costumes, many of the pictures drawn for the BOSTON AMERICAN by Nell Brinkley. Among the pictures shown are "A Yard of Grease," "A Row of Bottles," "In a Canoe" and "Between Love and Duty," and besides these there is a composite picture of all the "Brinkley Girls."

The most striking model in the group is Miss May Murray, who is so startling like the typical Brinkley creation that she might have posed for the original drawings.

Miss Murray is an ideal "Betty," a perfect realization of the fascinating type never portrayed by newspaper and magazine illustrators until Nell Brinkley took it up and made it her own.

In her face and figure, in her pose and in every movement, Miss Murray does more she is slender, of medium height, with finely modelled features, a rounded chin, and all of the physical characteristics of Miss Brinkley's most bewitching Betty. Standing, walking or sitting, with shoulders a pushed up to her ears or drooping, with chin pushed out or tucked down against her breast, she is the living "Brinkley Girl."

A few days ago the BOSTON AMERICAN printed with editorial comment, a letter from Mr. Wallace D. Jennings, who characterized the women in Nell Brinkley's pictures as unreal and altogether impossible.

Mr. Jennings might profit by a visit to with the charm and grace of the East.

the theatre.

There he would find a young woman, not only very possible but very real, who is bewilderingly like the type she impersonates.

Miss Murray is able to pose as a "Brinkley Girl" in any of the pictures and poses made by Nell Brinkley, and to look while doing it not only possible and real, but very charming.

"The Brinkley Girl is real," Miss Murray said to a reporter who interviewed her on the stage. Miss Murray is still a "Brinkley Girl," a typical Betty.

"It is no trouble for me to impersonate the bewitching girls that Nell Brinkley draws," she went on. "I find her a very real, very delightful girl, and I like to pose for the stage I am past as much a Brinkley girl as on.

"Nell Brinkley has simply given a very lovely type of young womanhood her just dues. The Brinkley Girl is modest, sweet, human and charming.

"I like her better than any of the other girls that famous artists have made —the Gibson girl, the Christy girl, the Fisher girl or any of the rest. There is more vim, more go, more originality about her than all the rest of them put together. She is the vigor of the West, combined with the refinement of the East.

"I made a careful study of the Brinkley Betty' before I began to impersonate her in the Brinkley pictures in 'The Follies of 1908.' She is a girl with infinite charm and grace and tact.

"she is slender, with a delicate, flexible body, and she bunches her little shoulders up and sticks out her strong, determined little chin, and is just as sweet and pretty and fascinating as a girl can be. I think the wonder and rapture of a 'Billy' burst like the tendrils of a grapevine around its stalk.

Whatever a few critical ones may say, the public is charmed with the Brinkley pictures. They are the hit of the show, and the fidelity with which the originals are reproduced adds to their popularity.

"I have never appeared in anything that gave me better opportunity than these pictures, and that is because they show real girls, jolly, sweet, fascinating human beings."

Besides Miss Murray there are in the Brinkley pictures Miss May Leslie, Miss Edith Bouvier, Miss Evelyn Washburn, Miss Viola Flowers, Miss Clark, Miss Irene Vernon and Miss Daisy Paul. They are all under the direction of Miss Anabel Whitford, who sings the "Brinkley Girl" songs that go with the presentation of the pictures.

Husbands I Have Met

Just the Finest Husband of All

Sidelights on Matrimony by a Sympathetic Spinster-Lady

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"I KNOW a man," said the spinster-lady, and then paused.

"Yes?" said her friend interestedly. "Go on! You know a good many men, but what about this particular man "

"Well, he is a real man, that's all. The sort of man I can imagine any stronger than she, if that is what you woman falling in love with; and what's more, staying in love with him."

"Dear me! This sounds interesting. "A man's man is in reality a woman's man; for women never really care for a man unless men like him, and this man is equally popular with both sexes."

"Is he a man's man, or a woman's man?"

"A man's man is in reality a woman's man; for women never really care for a man unless men like him, and this man is equally popular with both sexes."

"Most women are supposed to like masterful men. Is this paragon of yours that kind of man?"

"He makes a woman feel that he is mean; but if his hand is steel, it is gloved in velvet."

"Is he good-looking?"

"Not in the strictest sense of the word, He is tall, and clean-looking, and his lines is always immaculate. I don't mind a slubby coat, but I can't stand questionable linen. The man's eyes are as clear as a baby's, and as far-seeing as time."

"Is he sympathetic? That's the quality I like best in a man."

"Yes, my dear; that's just what he is—sympathetic. And he's consistent, also. He does not whirl a woman to realms of bliss one moment, and forget all about her the next."

"Is he a man who makes pretty speeches to women?"

"Yes, he is; and I have yet to find the woman who does not like to hear them. The average woman does not get half enough of that sort of mental nourishment, but when she does get it she thrives under it like a flower in the sunshine."

"Is he unmarried, this wonderful man?"

"No, my dear; what a question to ask! Of course he is married. Do you suppose such a man would be unappropriated? Do you think a bachelor? He is married, and his wife is the happiest woman I know; as well she might be, for I really think he is the finest man I have ever met."

SWEET CUCUMBER PICKLES

MAKE a brine of two cups salt to one gallon water. Let the cucumbers remain in this brine twenty-four hours. Then remove them and wipe with cheese cloth. Into a gallon of vinegar stir two cups brown sugar and an ounce of mixed spice. Heat these boiling hot. Put the pickles in and let the liquid come to a boiling point again, but do not continue boiling. Put in cans. They are sweet and an agreeable change from sour pickles.

Bennie Admits it Was a Mean Trick—But It Worked

By KENNETT HARRIS

"HOW many times do you want me to say it?" demanded Miss Callonby. "I thought we had that all settled finally and forever."

"I didn't understand it was 'finally,'" said Bennie Parvis. "I hoped——"

"I told you there was no use hoping," snapped the young woman. "You asked me if you might—hope, and I distinctly told you no. That's what I said, and now you might as well say good-by now," he said.

drag the whole thing up again."

"Was that the last time?" asked Bennie, wrinkled thoughtfully.

"You know perfectly well it was. It was in this very room. I have witnessed the next time, of a phonograph.

"Because I don't want you. I'm not going to marry you just to spare your feelings."

"I haven't any idea of asking you to marry me to spare my feelings. If you were willing to do it I shouldn't let you."

"The Last Man"

Miss Callonby pouted. "I don't see how you could help it," she said. "But you needn't feel alarmed. I'm not going to. You're the last man on the face of the earth that I would dream of marrying."

"You'd sooner have corwin, I suppose?" "Why, Bennie!" exclaimed the young woman. "I've told you twenty times that I detest Him. You know I have. And I do. He's loathly."

Bennie tried to shrug his shoulders. "Well count him out for the sake of argument," he said. "How about King?"

"I wouldn't have either of you," said Miss Callonby decidedly.

Bennie said that since "it follows that if you had to choose between King and me you would take King," he said.

"It doesn't follow at all," said Miss Callonby. "That was just a figure of speech."

Bennie brightened amazingly.

"Employed to impress you with the very positive nature of my dislike. Now does this make? Well, my dear, I should like you to understand that it is positive. I want this to be the very last time I shall be angry with you, Bennie, if you ever approach the subject again."

"I shan't. Won't you worry about that."

"I wish I could believe you."

"You may believe me, all right. I can promise you safely that you won't be bothered any more as far as I am concerned."

"Bennie," said Miss Callonby, "you aren't angry with me, are you?"

"No."

"Truly?"

"Truly."

"Because, you know, I would if I could possibly. I wouldn't have you really angry with me for anything in the world. You know that, don't you? What makes you say I can believe you in that way?"

"Because I mean it."

The young woman looked at him long and seriously. "Bennie, you don't seem natural at all this evening," she said. "There's something hard about you that I don't like. I believe you are angry with me, and you never were before in your whole life."

"And I never will love you which always have the very kindest thoughts." You talk as if you were going to China and didn't ever intend to come back."

"Mighty Near Guess"

Bennie smiled sadly. "That is a mighty near guess," he said. "The Philippines."

Miss Callonby gasped a little. "You're joking," she said.

"Never a joke," declared Bennie. "I've a good chance at a good thing out there, and I made up my mind that if you and I we had that all settled finally and forever."

"Change it," said Miss Callonby. "Change it to please me. I don't want you to go to that wretched place. You'll have fever and all sorts of horrible things."

Bennie shook his head. "I guess I

"Not to-night. I'd take it. And when I really do make up my mind——"

"Change it," said Miss Callonby. "Change it to please me. I don't want you to go to that wretched place. You'll have fever and all sorts of horrible things."

Bennie shook his head. "I guess I might as well say good-by now," he said.

He held out his hand. Miss Callonby took it and stood with her forehead wrinkled thoughtfully.

"I'll miss you horribly," she said at last. "Just a little at first," said Bennie.

"No, all the time. You won't change your mind?"

"No."

The thoughtful frown on the young woman's face deepened as the clock ticked on.

"Good-by," said Bennie.

She raised her eyes to his and found them sad but inflexible in expression.

"Bennie," she said, hesitatingly, "if I asked you to ask me again what you asked before, would you? You promised not to, but would you? Wait a moment, I said 'No' this evening and you said if I said 'No' you'd go to the Philippines, and you wouldn't change your mind. Would it change your mind if I said 'Yes'?"

"Are you asking out of curiosity?" demanded Bennie sternly. But he saw that she was not.

"Me a 'heart mean trick,' Bennie said to himself as he left the house. "Still I'm mighty sorry I didn't think of it before. If she ever finds out I was bluffing——"

Expert Advice on Health and Beauty

WANTS HARDENED HANDS

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Please let me know what to do for a sore and tender hand, as I want to play baseball and my hand gets sore, so I can't catch a ball.

A READER.

I KNOW of nothing that will harden your hand except work. The soreness will, of course, be present at first until the skin has become sufficiently thickened to stand the work. Practice with catching the ball ought to toughen the palm of the hand in time. Use alcohol or witch hasel to bathe it in, which will help.

CASE FOR PHYSICIAN

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Will you please tell me what is the cause of distended blood vessels on the nose? I am a young man of twenty-two years and a total abstainer, but at times the veins of my nose show plainly and are somewhat sore to the touch. Also the pores get very badly clogged with sebaceous matter. Any remedy or advice will be thankfully received. A. D. M.

THE distended veins and stopped up pores indicate a disordered stomach. For this condition you should take plenty of baths with a good rough rub afterward. It is not sufficient that one keep the face clean; the whole body should be looked after just as carefully. There may be something faulty with the heart action, which causes stagnation, but more likely it is with the stomach. At any rate if the care you can give yourself in the way of cleanliness and diet, leaving out all rich foods, does not cause an improvement consult a physician.

"HIDDEN—NOT LOST"

Look For the $1000 in Gold To-day—Trail Is Getting Hot.

Clews to Nearly $3000 in This Chapter of the Great Story.

By "The Money Man."

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

WALTER SINCLAIR, a young business man from Cleveland, meets a woman of real beauty in Boston. She gives her name as Madame Alvarez, but is mysterious and is pursued by enemies. Sinclair promises Sinclair to promise to aid her. He gets a chauffeur named Dalton and a red automobile to help him.

The woman is pursued by two men and a woman, who claim to be Dr. Matthias, proprietor of a sanitarium, and his wife. Sinclair certainly does not like Dr. Matthias, and Madame Alvarez tells him that he is a fraud, that she escaped from his hospital and some people wished to kill her, so from a Back Bay home.

Madame Alvarez and secured in Boston a valuable locked box, one of Pythias in the world. She has a package whose she imparted how to guard securely, but not his package and sent to the home of Dr. Matthias to that after the doctor had had possession of it. Sinclair is to get the package and bring it back.

Dr. Matthias impressed on Sinclair the story that the ladies were after Madame Alvarez, and that it were better that the hiding place of the jewel box was known, and that her enemies would not know is before she and herself were arrested.

Marion Marston, Sinclair's fiancee, lightened at receiving no word from him, came to Boston from Cleveland. He was unable to find him, but made friends about his strange adventure with the mysterious woman. Sinclair, in the meantime, had motored to Lynn, and on the night when she was to depart, received a message from Madame Alvarez requesting him to call.

Madame Alvarez authorized Sinclair to open the package in his possession, if she was not present at the appointed and secure valuable articles that she had left. Sinclair opened the package and found that it contained a black flannel. The package had been in the hands of Dr. Matthias, and Sinclair, in the presence of several witnesses, found that the flannel contained the secrets of Madame Alvarez and had carried something of the kind of a letter that Madame Alvarez had carried.

Sinclair discovered the source and digging at the root of a tree unearthed a box in which he found a good piece of jewelry, it contained he found the flannel, which he carried to Boston. Before leaving his hotel he found waiting for him Dr. Matthias.

Matthias sent a second message to Sinclair that he was sneaked out kept from harm by the soldiers. Sinclair, however, refused to see him, and revealed a pistol at Matthias and forced him to drop his weapon.

Matthias told Sinclair that Madame Alvarez was the head of the Secret Service of Russia. That the other had fled her country she took with her secret papers of great value to the Czar, and a number in the treasury of the Russian government. Matthias said, had carried him to chase Madame Alvarez. A note from the beautiful woman declared that she was held a prisoner by Matthias. Sinclair found the woman. They then separated, the red auto and went in search of the missing treasure.

Believing that Matthias, whom they ran across, was in the vicinity, Sinclair and Madame Alvarez chased him into a green car. Matthias had an auto ride, outfitted with a headdress car and threw it and Matthias has a headache.

CHAPTER XXXI.

"NOW for the money," said Sinclair, cutting the engine with the clutch. "I know that scoundrel Matthias has it or will soon have it, and he knows where it is. I should not be in the least surprised, however, if he removed it from its first hiding place to some other. That is one of the favorite tricks that he and his confederates have been playing."

While Malthus was not apparently seriously hurt as a result of the collision he was in a surly temper. He greeted Sinclair with a grunt and a malignant flash of his eyes.

"Want that gold, eh?" he asked with a snarl.

"Yes, Malthus," replied Sinclair, confidently. "You will oblige us by handing it over. We know that you removed it from the spot where it was hidden. Now give it to us."

Malthus smiled. The smile was followed by a grunt and he made a convulsive clutch at his breast. He had not escaped unscathed, which, in the peculiar auto accident.

"You will probably not believe me, my dear sir," he began with a tinge of sarcasm in his voice, "but stranger as it may not the wealth. If I had, all the automobiles and pretty girls in the world would not have caught me."

"Where is it—where is it?" ejaculated Sinclair, who certainly was at the spot "you picked up something—I saw it—"

"Yes," replied Malthus, in the same saturnine monotone that he had previous. ly employed after which and he continued as you say. Would you like to see it? Here it is."

Malthus handed a small package to Sinclair. He opened it and after unwinding a number of wrappings of thick paper he finally disclosed a sheet of heavy note paper bearing a crest and the French motto at the entrance of one of the most famous palaces in the Black Forest.

Written in a fine, but very legible hand, were these words from the Mikado light operas:

"On a tree by a river a little tom-tit
Sang: 'Willow, tit-willow, tit-willow,
Tit-willow.'"

"Ha! Ha! Rose Ferrari."

"What does that mean, and out of that, Malthus?" asked Sinclair, "it sounds crazy to me."

"That's because you do not know Rose who by any other name would be as crafty. That 'willow' means something and I notice that it's more of them than there are in the song."

Sinclair stood for a moment in deep thought. He realized that the name of the woman companion of Malthus had even played a trick on the alleged doctor.

The quotation apparently related to hidden treasure. He resolved to take the risk and involuntarily he snatched softly a sketch of the air of the Mikado tune.

"But there are two spots where treasure is hidden," he recalled, "and all I know is that they are not a very great distance apart. I guess I had better start with the clew I have."

Then he thought of the other clew that he had not had time as yet to investigate. It was becoming plainer and plainer to him that he required himself for not saving and picking up the treasure. This is the clew as he recalled it now:

"Bottle—Common—tree—$100—

In the meantime Madame Alvarez and Marion stood apart talking to each other earnestly.

Clews that have not been run down will be repeated and made plainer from day to day until all the treasure is found.

HUNDREDS JOIN HUNT FOR KEY BEFORE DAWN

Storm and Darkness Have No Terrors for Searchers Who Are After Treasure.

CROWDS THRONG FENWAY

Rain has no terror for the man or woman who wants that $1000 key in the AMERICAN'S great treasure hunt. Thousands of men and women scoured the Fenway and Boston Common yesterday and to-day in search of the elusive wealth.

One of the searchers who was notified that he had got the right idea of the Boston Common clew said to-day.

"I got up at 3 o'clock yesterday morning to get the AMERICAN and find out about the Common clew. I thought I would be the first one on the ground. But when I got to the Common I was surprised to find both men and women there. Some of them must have remained there all night.

Singly and in groups the searchers threaded their way about the large open space in the Back Bay section.

"One thing about these clews in the Fenway," remarked a resident of Copp's Hill, where an aggressive campaign was waged in searching for treasure, "is that the hunters can't find anything. It's a jolly good place for a free-for-all hunt."

The telephone bell of the AMERICAN rang to-day and a woman's voice at the other end of the wire made this inquiry:

"Is this 'The Money Man?'

"Yes," was the reply.

"Am I allowed to climb a tree in the Common?"

"Can you?"

"Well, I'd like to try. I think I have the right clew to that $100 and I wanted to know if I would be allowed to climb a tree."

The woman was told that no one would have to climb a tree to get any of the hidden treasure.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and A FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. Dr. H. D. Benner, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have used your Castoria as a purgative in the cases of children for years past with the most happy effect, and fully endorse it as a safe remedy."

Dr. J. A. Boarman, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."

Dr. J. J. Mackey, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I consider your Castoria an excellent preparation for children, being composed of reliable medicines and pleasant to the taste. A good remedy for all disturbances of the digestive organs."

NO DANGER OF WAR WITH JAPS SAYS O'BRIEN

CHICAGO, July 20.—In an interview here Thomas D. O'Brien, United States Ambassador at Tokio, Japan, declared, "The United States is the best country in the civilized world the Japanese would care to war with. They realize that the United States is the best country they can deal with commercially and financially. Japan needs America's trade and will do every thing almost to hold it.

"The Japanese Government eagerly anticipates the coming of Admiral Sperry and his big fleet, and arrangements are under way for giving the fleet the greatest and grandest ovation any country could possibly give another country.

"The sending of that fleet in the Orient is emphatic proof of President Roosevelt's great foresight and diplomacy. Nothing could have been better done, and the matter will have its influence with other countries."

SAVORY'S BODY FOUND.

MARION, July 20.—The body of George H. Savory of Marblehead, the third victim in the disaster in Buzzards Bay over a week ago, when four men lost their lives in the explosion and burning of the launch Bologna, has been recovered from the waters of Wild Harbor, on the Falmouth side of the bay.

BULLETS HALT PRISONER.

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 20.—In an endeavor to escape from the police officers by whom he had been arrested on a larceny charge, John H. Whitehead jumped from the third-story window of his home and fled down the road and was only recaptured after a fusillade of shots from the revolvers of the officers.

A broken, flat nose bridge made straight.

4 ALDERMEN STAND BY MAYOR, ONE MAY JOIN

AMERICAN CANVASS SHOWS ELLERY CLARK HOLDS KEY TO BRIDGE GRAB VETO.

The BOSTON AMERICAN made a canvass of all the members of the Board of Aldermen today to learn their attitude in regard to Mayor Hibbard's veto of the Northern avenue bridge grab, which comes before the board for not action at a special meeting to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Four members favor sustaining the Mayor, and one, Ellery H. Clark, probably join them and give the five votes necessary to prevent passing the grab over the Mayor's veto.

Here is the line-up of the board:

Against the grab.....4
Favoring the grab.....2
Non-committal.....2
Will probably vote against the grab.....1

What They Say.

Here is what the Aldermen themselves say about it:

Alderman Anderson: "I will vote to sustain the veto."

Alderman Baldwin: "I will wait until the matter comes to me. Then I'll decide."

Alderman Ballantyne: "I don't see why the order should be killed."

Alderman Brand: "I have been against the order from the start. I will vote to sustain the veto."

Aldermen Ellery H. Clark—"I will probably vote to sustain the veto."

Alderman Louis M. Clark—"I haven't decided."

Alderman Cotton—"I think the order should pass."

Alderman Curley—"I want time to think it over."

Alderman Donnelly—"I will trote to sustain the veto."

Alderman Finigan—"I haven't decided yet."

Alderman Leary—"I'll have to think it over before I decide."

Alderman Parker—"I voted for the order. I don't see why I should change my vote."

Alderman Timilty—"I will vote to sustain the veto."

When the franchise was passed by the Board of Aldermen Alderman Timilty was absent, being at the Democratic convention in Denver. Alderman Brand was the only member of the board to vote against it. The vote, therefore, was eleven to one in favor of granting the franchise.

Big Lobby at Work.

for votes enough to override the veto. If the lobby succeeds the franchise will stand, and the Union Freight Railroad Company, a ring of Charles S. Mellen's railroad octopus, despite opposition and public protest, will gain the perpetual use of the new $800,000 bridge without the payment of a penny into the city treasury.

Here is the question that will be placed upon to-morrow's aldermanic calendar, and upon which the aldermen will vote:

"Shall the order to allow the Union Freight Railroad Company track rights across the Northern avenue bridge be passed, notwithstanding the veto of the Mayor?"

Inquiring, the question would read:

"Shall the Union Freight Railroad Company (which means the New York, New Haven & Hartford) be allowed a free and perpetual use of the new Northern avenue bridge, for which the people of Boston paid $800,000?"

FIREBUG PUTS SCORE IN PERIL

By Boston American Leased Wire.

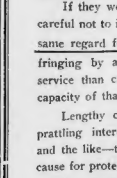
NEW YORK, July 20.—Two persons were overcome, the twenty families occupying the big double-deck tenement at No. 228 238 South Third street, Williamsburg, were thrown into a panic to-day when fire, bearing all the evidence of the work of an incendiary, broke out in the large hallway and quickly filled the lower halls with smoke, cutting off escape from the upper stories.

When the firemen arrived they found the tenants panic-stricken, huddled together on the fire escape landing and begging piteously to be taken down. Several extension ladders were run up the front walls, and many of the tenants, men, women and children, were carried to safety.

ARCHIE FORGOT HIS WAR PAINT

OYSTER BAY, July 20.—Archie Roosevelt attempted to attend church dressed with the back of his neck and ears all red from the Indian makeup he had worn earlier in his sister's fancy dress party the night previous.

His half-red, half-white condition escaped the attention of his parents as he climbed into the back seat of the automobile in which the President and Mrs. Roosevelt were taken to church. As he left the automobile, however, several boys standing about the church door began laughing so loudly that the President turned to see what was the trouble. He caught sight of his son's Indian makeup and Archie was told to get into the auto as speedily as possible and hunt up some soap and water.



Telephone Talks

Keep in touch with the world—and see to it that the world may keep in touch with you.

Party-Liners And the Golden Rule

Party lines telephone subscribers virtually are co-tenants. They jointly pay for a single telephone line.

If they were co-tenants of a building they would be careful not to infringe upon the rights of others. That same regard for the equities should keep them from infringing by appropriating to themselves more telephone service than can be exacted as their fair share of the capacity of that line.

Lengthy conversations on unimportant matters, the prattling intercourse of children, phonograph concerts and the like—these sometimes congest party lines and give cause for protest, from other tenants in common.

A party line telephone has been likened to a spur track on a main line of railroad. But there is this important qualification—when the telephone spur track is in use, the entire main line is closed to traffic, not merely to the other spur tracks on the line, but also to incoming trains consigned to any part of the line.

Ordinary regard for the principle of the Golden Rule will do more to avert party line difficulties than all the rules any telephone company may promulgate.

Dear Nell:

Frank and I were at Wonderland last night, and before we started to take in the shows had a delightful meal at the "New Quick Lunch" under the Ball Room. The manager told us that they had only been open a week but the public had already caught on to the fact that the "New Quick Lunch" was serving good food at popular prices, in an elegant dining room, with plenty of seats. You ought to give it a try the next time you come down to

GAMES TO-DAY.

Chicago at Boston.
St. Louis at New York.
Detroit at Philadelphia.
Cleveland at Washington.

The two Boston ball teams, the Doves and the Red Sox, struggling in the second division of the two leagues, have passed the half season mark and their fighting powers will come to the surface in the next month.

This week the Red Sox end their stay at home, playing Chicago the last game in the series to-day, and then comes the St. Louis, the team which is the big sensation of the American League for unknown strength. They will play four games with the Red Sox.

After the series with the Browns the Red Sox jump to Cleveland, starting in the Forest City on its third Western invasion, with the prospects of greater success than on any other occasion.

Red Sox Return August 14.

From Cleveland the Hub team goes to Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis and do not get back to the home field till August 14, and by that time there will be a good chance to draw a comparison of the Western and Eastern teams and the ultimate possibilities for the pennant.

By making it close to an even break with the Western teams on the local grounds and the team's known ability of being good on the road there are hopes that before Labor Day the club may hold forth close to the first division.

President Taylor is using every means to strengthen the team, and is after every player available.

The securing of Jake Stahl and selling of Unglaub is a move which is bound to help the club. Unglaub has been disappointing, but he can't come up to Stahl as a batter, and that is what the team needs mostly.

The Reds will be back at the South End grounds this week, opening up with Cincinnati, and they are here for a stay till August 11, and in that time should be able to raise their position in the league race.

Before reaching the Hub the Doves play three more hard games with the Chicago Cubs, and considering that the Windy City lads have been pushed off their position at the head of the list the Doves should do better there than heretofore.

The Doves will play Cincinnati here on Friday.

ELMER FLICK IN BAD CONDITION

Fans who have got a glimpse of Elmer Flick, the star outfielder of the Naps, have come to the conclusion that he will not play ball this season.

When Mitch left Cleveland he was in good spirits, and he and his teammates hoped that he would shortly round to and help the Naps to the top of the heap.

Elmer's heart was willing, but he is physically unable to do either himself or his team justice in such a strenuous campaign as is now on tap in the American League.

The unusual heat encountered in the Larrupers in the early stages of the month of even the rugged Naps, to say nothing of Flick, and it was decided by the scout Elmer home. The springy step of the popular Flick was conspicuous by its absence, and instead of the rugged farmer Elmer now looks as if a rest for the balance of the season will just about build him up to his old time form.

TO FORCE 'DEL' TO QUIT YANKS

LITTLE ROCK, July 20.—President Kavanaugh has gone out on the warpath against Frank Delehanty and the New York Americans.

Frank, for the alleged offence of spitting in Umpire Brown's face, was suspended by the Southern League, and still stands suspended. He refused to sign the right to play ball with any team playing under the national agreement. He will be forced to leave the Highland team until his suspension is raised.

IRENE II. WINS LONG RACE

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., July 20.—S. W. Granbery's power yacht Irene II., the boat that won second prize in the ocean race to Bermuda, was the first to cross the finish line in the 270-mile race from Marblehead to New Rochelle. She completed the course in 32 hours and 33 minutes, having started from Marblehead at 10:10 Saturday morning with eleven other boats.

M'ALEER SAYS HIS TEAM WILL STICK

NEW YORK, July 20.—While all around the country the dopesters are saying Jim McAleer's crowd of veterans are too old to stand the pace, Jimmy is serenely confident that they will not only stick this year, but next. Jim says he will "stand pat."

"Wallace, Williams and Ferris are not all to blame by any means," he maintains. "Our infield has held us in the race and will keep us there another season also. They cannot take us out of the first division with such men doing the inner work. All of these men are old in experience, but not so old in age.

"At the end of the year you will find that Williams and Wallace and Ferris are playing the same steady game as they are now.

"With two exceptions our pitchers are all veterans. Many said they were all through last year, but they need but a little come back to form this year, and may stick a few more seasons to come. But at present the pitching staff is the place where the young fellow with unusual ability can break in a big league with the Browns in.

"I have heard several remarks that unless we win the pennant this season we are lost, because we have a team that is on the decline. That is where they are badly taken. We may have to do some patching to make the east wear through three or four years, but the quality is in the goods to last for a long time. We will need to help in the pitching department, and the rest of the team will do its share of the work for many more battles.

"I still do not luck out on awful figure in baseball. Any day we get the breaks we will win, but when we don't we go down like all the rest of them under such circumstances. I have watched baseball for many years, and I have never been able to figure just how great a wash luck runs in the game. You may get a good team and take good ball and yet not win.

"We have a good team. It is our infield that has kept us in the race. Wallace and Ferris have made our team. They have not only held our opponents down by great work in the field, but they have done the timely hitting. I was very lucky to pick up two such players in a single deal.

"Ferris, I guess, can strike out as often as any man in the league, and yet I like to see him go up there with men on the bases. That is when he does his hitting. Of course, it's a long way to the finish, but, barring accidents, we should be right near the top all the time and if we have the best of the breaks we may win the flag. I realize that we have several to beat, but don't figure Chicago out of it. That club gets more runs on fewer hits than any other club in the league, and if this luck hangs with them they are apt to come home with a rush at the end."

KRAMER FIRST IN OPEN RACE

NEWARK, N. J., July 20.—Frank L. Kramer captured the six-mile-open professional race at the Vailsburg, N. J., bicycle track, taking it from a good field, and beating John Bedell and Floyd Krebs out in a fine finish. Two other professional events were featured on the program—the Motodrome sweepstakes, in five heats, which Edward Rupprecht captured from the new world record mark, and the one-mile handicap, won cleverly by Edward F. Root, starting from fifty yards.

No More Six or Ten Round Fights for Nelson

BAT BARS SHORT BOUTS

By TAD.

There will be no more six or ten round fights on the record of Battling Nelson if Willis Britt, who manages the Dane now, has anything to say. Willis writes from Frisco that the old forty-five round thing, or the finish fights, go for the future and nothing else.

Here's his letter:

Friend Tad: Well, old boy, please refer to your idea if you used my letter in connection with the fiasco Nelson fight. He is the greatest little man that ever scraped on resin on a fiddling floor. Of course there are knockers who do not wish to give him credit, and others who envy the credit he is getting.

Before he beat them the ex-champion was the greatest of the great. Only one month after Battling Nelson and Joe Rolette went to scrap, principally to decide who is the better of the two, Rolette has since been knocked out by Jack Dubois's foe, John Ins, and with a few well directed wallops he put Rudy in a heap on the floor. He was then the old wreck. Just a month later, when Battling Nelson entered, crumbled and shattered him to such an as if he were a Nabisco, they said "Poor Joe" was too often in the well.

There is one satisfaction, however, that's what they said, Corbett, Jeffries, Sullivan, and subsequently when Fitz beat Corbett. It's the same old story, and when Nelson fights Ad Wolgast the proper headline should read, "Long live the King, the old King was a dead one."

Tad, Mr. Gans was as good a Joe Gans the other day out at Colma's arena as ever he was in his life. If Nelson fought Gans he'd diddled the way I made him fight on the North, he would have had the fight lost as easily as he did the other day.

It will be many a long day before you see Battling Nelson on the floor for the ten. Tying Gans in a knot for forty-five rounds as Nelson is trying to tie Joe Rolette's ears with a rack hammer. While he is under my management any of the boys who want a crack at him will have to qualify for the same by first knocking out Joe Rolette in less time than forty-five rounds, and incidentally Joe is going to be a hard man to knock out. Yours truly, WILLIS BRITT.

Little sad, then, the bout between Joe Wolcott and Jack Robinson the other night. Little sad was enjoyed all the way. It was only one side of "The Barbados Demon," however. His right hand was as useful as a fifth wheel on a wagon, and he couldn't do anything but swing with his left. The left swings Robinson hit almost as he pleased.

About four hundred saw the bout. Five or six years ago Joe would have folded the tall Jack up in five or six rounds, and instead of doing that there would have been nearer ten thousand people out to watch the little black fellow go.

He looks just the same, but, as he said in his dressing room after the fight, "I'm not the same Walcott any more. I ain't got the sting in those fists."

* * *

Phil Jawn O'Brien had a talk with Jim Buckley, round the boxer who made the "Unconscious Fifty" famous will probably appear at the Navarre Club, New York, in the near future, with either Billy Papke or some other equally famous guy. Mr. Buckley has hired Packey McFarland offering him a fight with Tommy Murphy for September. Should Cross beat Murphy, then the card will read Cross vs. McFarland, which is some.

* * *

"Elbows" McFadden wishes to deny that he is going to pack his own lunch when he leaves for Europe on the 25th. He'll be going to bring it.

* * *

"I see by the papers," that Tex Rickard fears that he cannot hold the Nelson-Gans fight at Ely, Nevada, on September.

All right, Tex, me lad. Keep on offering. We're getting use to it now. Have you heard from Jack Curley lately?

A prominent traveling salesman dropped into Tom Sharkey's Saloon after the Nelson-Gans fight at Ely, Nevada, on September.

A prominent traveling salesman dropped into Tom Sharkey's Saloon after the Nelson-Gans fight at Ely, Nevada, on September.

"Well," piped the salesman, "before answering that I want to know whether it's an invitation or merely an inquiry."

BOER UNHOLZ IS AFTER TITLE

No match decided in recent months in New England has created so much gossip among the followers of fistiana as the attraction at the Armory A. A. Tuesday night, July 28, when Boer Unholz of New York faces the formidable Boer, Unholz, in a twelve-round contest to a decision.

Unholz has beaten the present holder of the lightweight championship, Hat Nelson, while Murphy for over a year has mowed all his opponents down, and his admirers are staunch believers that he Harlemite can defeat Unholz. Both are clever boxers in the lightweight division of fistiana.

At different hours during the day both Bill McKinnon and Jack Killeen are doing their training at the Armory Club gymnasium, and from appearance the Irish lad is sure to give a good account of himself against the Roxbury strong boy.

The show gives great promise of being an exceptionally brilliant one throughout, and as it is over a month since any show has been held hereabouts, the members are taking more than passing interest in the program presented.

ARCHBISHOP FARLEY TO BE A CARDINAL

Pope in Favor of New York Prelate for Red Hat Honors.

PURPLE FOR O'CONNELL

Special Cable to Boston American.

ROME, July 20.—Archbishop John M. Farley of New York, will be created a Cardinal Gibbons, is now on the way to Rome to present the Peter's pence collected at Easter to the Pope, will be created a cardinal before his return to the United States, according to persistent reports in Vatican circles today.

No consistory has ever been so eagerly discussed as the impending one which will inaugurate many new reforms in the Roman curia.

These reforms have just been formulated by Pius X. The changes made involve the creation of several new cardinals for Rome. There are fifty-nine living members of the sacred college, eleven short of the full number, and five dead. Of the six number that elected Pius X. Twenty seven of these cardinals reside in Rome.

Almost half of them are either octogenarians or invalids, while many of the other half are incapable of work. Whether the holy Father's recent hopes may later scarcely more than a dozen Cardinals—Del Val, Vannutelli, Sarto, Segna, Vives, Detai, Martinelli, Merry, Gotti, Tolesser, the two Vannutelli and Ferrari.

Farley Model Archbishop.

Four names have been kept prominently before influential prelates here. O'Connell or Boston; Ryan of Philadelphia, Quigley of Chicago, and Farley of New York.

Archbishop Ryan is unlikely to receive the red hat, owing to his extreme age, His Holiness preferring younger men.

There is no chance that the other three will be named simultaneously at the same consistory, but it is said improbable that two of them will receive the purple at the next consistory.

If Pius alone were concerned in the promotions it is certain that Archbishop Farley would be created a cardinal without delay, for His Holiness frequently refers to Mr. Farley in the most flattering terms.

Thus far, however, Pius has been guided almost entirely by the advice of others than in creating new cardinals, and neither Archbishop Farley nor Archbishop Ryan is endeavored to push New York's claims for recognition.

It is rumored also that Mgr. O'Connell of Boston may be the first to receive the purple from the consistory.

150,000 TO GO BACK TO WORK WITHIN MONTH

ST. LOUIS, July 20.—Within the next thirty days, practically all the large forges and foundries in Southern Illinois, which are closed by the financial depression, will be reopened and 150,000 men will be put back to work, according to data gathered by the East St. Louis Commercial Club. By the end of next month it is expected that conditions on the other side of the river will be such where they can be taken up in Madison, Granite City and Venice, in which are located many of the largest factories in Illinois, have already felt the return of normal conditions. Orders and rumors of full dinner pails are getting more in evidence daily, and hundreds of men have returned to work.

NEW OUTBREAK STIRS TURKEY, POWERS TO ACT

ST. PETERSBURG, July 20.—A private telegram from Constantinople announces that troops in the Adrianople District are limiting those at Monastir. They are mutinying and seized the railway station. It confirms the report that General Gandin Hilmi Pacha was killed by mutineers, shot by an officer in the courtyard barracks.

Monastic rumors are current that the powers, through their ambassadors, have in view of addressing a collective note to the Porte regarding the Young Turk movement, which if it continues to gain force may become a danger to the peace of Europe.

It is affirmed that the Russian Black Sea fleet has received orders to hold itself in readiness for all eventualities. The London correspondent of the Novoe Vremya telegraphing confirms the dutch account concerning the conclusion of a special agreement between Austria Hungary and Turkey.

HIBERNIANS OFF FOR CONVENTION

Fifty Bay State delegates to the biennial convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, which opens to-morrow in Indianapolis, are on their way to the convention city. Among the prominent delegates are the Rev. Philip O'Donnell and Matthew Cummings of Boston.

Massachusetts will also be well represented at the convention of the Ladies' Auxiliary, which meets in Indianapolis at the same time. This State represents nearly one-seventh of the entire membership of the auxiliary. This year's State will report more members than ever before and a hard fight will be made for legislation providing for representation at conventions based upon membership.

The Massachusetts delegation is headed by Miss Catherine E. Burke of Somerville, the State President.

ANOTHER DEAD ONE, SUICIDE PARTING

PITTSBURG, July 20.—"Here's another dead one gone," was the remark made by George R. Thompson, plano player in a fifth avenue nickelodeon, as he rose from his piano and in sight of hundreds fatally shot himself in the head. Thompson had been playing while the moving pictures showed the Nelson-Gans fight. As Gans went down for the count Thompson ended his own life.

15,000 TURNERS HONOR PRINCE IN BIG PARADE

Oscar Welcomes Visitors to Frankfort-on-the-Main; Salutes Americans.

READY FOR TOURNAMENT

FRANKFORT-ON-MAIN, July 20.—Everything is now in readiness for the international tournament of the Turners. The big feature of the preliminary festivities in connection with the gymnastic tournament was held this afternoon, when the parade was reached when Prince Oscar of Prussia in behalf of the Emperor and the Crown Prince, who are traveling in Austria, travelled from Bonn to greet the members of the Turners' Union. More than 15,000 Turners were present during the ceremonies, which included a grand symbolical procession in honor of the Prince. In the parade the Turners were divisions of various periods, representing sports from the times of the Olympic games until the present day. This was followed by a parade of all clubs having societies here. The parade was a thrilling a strong showing. The Prince gave a marked salute to each of the five American flags carried by the visitors. Afterward he made a speech extending a warm welcome to the visitors. Massed exercises by 15,000 Turners followed.

$1,000 CHAIR FOR TAFT, IF--

WASHINGTON, July 20.—If Taft is elected president he will have a chance to sit in a $1,000 chair.

N. R. Powell, a ranchman of Pettus, Tex., has given an order for the building of a chair to be made exclusively of the horns of Texas cattle and to cost that amount, which will be presented to Judge Taft "when he takes his seat as President." A similar present was made by admiring friends of the late Benjamin Harrison, but the present cost only $100. He carried the chair back to Indianapolis with him when he left the White House at the end of his term. The donor of the chair to Benjamin Harrison lives in Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, and in describing the present he intends to confer on Judge Taft in case Mr. Taft is elected, Mr. Powell says:

"The chair will be a companion piece for the pants to San Antonio that I provided, and the new President while wrestling with problems of the nation in Washington will at the same time be able to enjoy some of the comforts of Texas, a condition which any man cannot fail to duly appreciate."

TAFT IS NOW A UNION MAN

HOT SPRINGS, Va., July 20.—When William Howard Taft goes to Cincinnati on Aug. 5 after his speech of acceptance, he will have the union label pinned on his coat.

In response to an official notification that he has been elected an honorary member of the International Brotherhood of Steam Shovel Engineers, he has made an appointment with T. J. Dolan of Chicago, president of the union, to meet the organization officially while here. Dolan will arrive on July 29. He will then be formally notified of his election to the union.

CROKER WON'T HELP BRYAN

LONDON, July 20.—"I am not going to America to assist Mr. Bryan's campaign this Fall. I intend to remain in England and I shall have nothing to do, directly, or indirectly, with the coming election in the United States."

This is said to be Richard Croker's denial of a report printed in New York to the effect that he intended to sail at once for home to assist Bryan in order to help the National Democratic ticket this Fall. Mr. Croker reiterated the statement he has made over and over again.

"I have withdrawn from politics entirely. I shall never re-enter it, here or in America."

Mr. Croker is at Sandyford, Dublin.

RISKS LIFE TO SAVE KITTEN

Hugging his pet cat, for which he risked his life, closely to his breast, Edward Lee Tomisky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Tomisky of No. 86 H street, South Boston, was rescued from Dorchester Bay by Captain John T. O'Day, who reached the child just in time to save his life. The boy in reaching for the cat, which had fallen overboard from a dory, lost his balance and fell into the sea.

The officer without stopping to remove his helmet leaped after him and caught him just as he was sinking for the last time.

WARSHIP BUIDERS IN HOT CONTEST

NEW YORK, July 20.—The naval constructors at the New York Navy Yard who are to have the supervision of the building of the great new 20,000-ton all big guns battleship Florida, authorized by the last Congress, are not going to lose any time in getting the ship ready for commission. There promises to be keen rivalry between the private concern that will build the Utah, the Florida's sister ship, and government workers who will build the Florida. It is expected very shortly after that both ships will be ready for the fleet within two and a half years.

BOSTON TUG ASHORE.

ROCKPORT, July 20.—The tug Richmond, towing two barges, went ashore on Sandy Bay breakwater three miles from here and an eighth of a mile northeast of Avery's Ledge. The Richmond left Boston with the barges Mary B. Mitchell and Ohio in tow for the Kanawbee River to load ice for Baltimore.

DR. SIMPSON WELL; HINTS AT REVENGE

NEW YORK, July 20.—Dr. James W. Simpson, the dentist who was shot in Northport, L. I., on July 14 by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Ella Horner, of the murder of whose husband Dr. Simpson was acquitted a year ago, has left Roosevelt Hospital. He was in high spirits, although the bullet has not been removed. Attendants say the dentist intimated that he would sue Mrs. Horner.

A Juror's Complaint

Only Partly Justified

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal-Examiner

To the Editor:

Would be pleased to see an editorial on the following incident:

A few days ago a citizen, being called upon for jury duty, stated that he was willing to serve, but that he was unwilling to see a decision rendered by twelve business men, who were taken away from their vocations, reversed upon a small technicality discovered by an astute lawyer, and for this reason Mr. A. B. G.—he doesn't care to have his name printed—sends the following communication:

declined to sit on a case. Whereupon the Judge told him that he was a disgrace to American citizenship and ordered his name struck from the roll of qualified jurors. Since then I have heard this incident discussed and commented upon, and I should appreciate your opinion upon so vital a matter.

Very respectfully,

A. B. G.

There may have been justice in this juror's complaint. But there was not a LEGITIMATE REASON FOR REFUSING TO SERVE ON A JURY. No individual, in a republic, has a right to set himself, his private opinion or private grievance above a system approved by all. The jury system is one of the remaining safeguards of democratic government in the United States. This newspaper is opposed to the unlimited power of injunction by judges, chiefly because THE USE OF THE INJUNCTION AND THE FOLLOWING PUNISHMENT FOR CONTEMPT OF COURT ARE IN EVERY CASE AN ABOLITION OF TRIAL BY JURY.

Judges do, occasionally, talk to jurors in a way that would make it highly desirable to take the Judge up by the collar of his coat and remove him permanently from the bench. But that is no reason why a citizen should refuse to do his duty.

Occasionally a judge forgets that the average juror is in every way his equal, and in one way his superior, since the juror is serving the public for nothing, or a nominal reward, sacrificing his own business, whereas the judge is paid for the work he does on the bench and is supposed to have no other business.

In a great majority of cases, fortunately, our judges, superior men as a class, are exemplary and courteous in their treatment of jurors, and say criticism they make of a juror is apt to be well deserved.

It does happen, as we have said, that the judge occasionally forgets that the juror is his equal in manhood and in rights, although not in courtroom authority. Occasionally a judge forgets that the juror represents THE SUPREME POWER OF THE LAND, WHICH IS THE CITIZENSHIP. Such a judge is out of place on the bench. But his mistake does not justify a citizen refusing to do his duty as a juror. We know nothing about the merits of the individual case in point.

But we do know that the judges are our most influential body of men, that they have been allowed to get too much out of touch with the people and too much in touch with the upper class—the upper class or ruling class at present being the corporations.

We know that this sympathy between judges and the upper class, this separation of the judges and the people, has caused serious trouble in the past and that it will cause serious trouble in the future, if the judges and the people continue to drift apart, the people neglecting their duty of supervision and the judges forgetting their allegiance.

"Littlest" Is All Right, Mr. Reader

But "Worser" Is NOT RIGHT

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal-Examiner

A gentleman who signs his name McClellan has this to say:

"Who is your authority for the use of the word 'littlest' in the heading of an editorial? If a school child used such a word, what a calling down it would get! I suppose you will use 'littler' and 'worser' next."

We hadn't in mind any particular authority for the use of the word "littlest," for we didn't need any. In constructing the superlative of words of three syllables and more, it is usually better, instead of adding the letters "est," to put in front of the positive the word "most." We should say "most important," not "importantest." But in two-syllable words you are at liberty, if you choose, to say for instance, "littlest," instead of "most little." In fact, "most little" would sound queer.

Shakespeare, if you want an authority, went even farther, for he wrote, as you know, "most unkindest" in the line, "this was the most unkindest cut of all." Shakespeare was amusing himself with the English language, of which he is a sort of grandfather. We of to-day, the grandchildren of Shakespeare's English, have no right to take such liberties. Shakespeare himself used "littlest" at least once:

"Where love is great, the littlest doubts are fear."
—Hamlet, III, 2.

Higher and greater, we offer you the authority of Richard Harding Davis, who called one of his stories "The Littlest Girl."

You COULDN'T say "worser," kind reader, for "worse" in itself is a comparative, and you can't have a comparative OF a comparative.

As a matter of fact, it isn't worth your while or anybody else's while to bother about little things in language. The principal thing is to have A THOUGHT WORTH WHILE and express it with clearness and with reasonable accuracy of language.

Better to write one of the letters of a Napoleon or a Cromwell, who knew nothing about language, and live up to that letter, rather than write the smooth phrases of the perfect letter-writer, brother to the pink-eyed rabbit.

CONGRATULATE, NOT CONDOLE!

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

In a recent edition of the AMERICAN I read of a dispute between the Rev. Mr. Phillips and that grand exponent of modern thought, Mrs. Wilcox, as to the authorship of that exquisite poem entitled "A Song."

I read it fully twenty years ago—I think in the Youth's Companion, and the joy it gave me to see it republished was like that of meeting an old friend again. I have read Mr. Wilcox's works for many years, and I think that any one who is familiar with her writings, could not help recognizing her personality—or if you choose—that vague, indefinable something called "style," in the poem.

If it were left to me to bestow upon her a title I should call her "The Mother of Beautiful Songs," which she so fully merits.

Instead of condoling with her because she (in a degree) is the victim of one of the most deplorable types of thief, we should congratulate her upon the fact that she has written something really worth stealing, a fact that does not apply to some other writers who number among her contemporaries. Some of the greatest intellects of which history tells, died poor because some unscrupulous person stood ever ready to steal the product of their brains.

THE PEOPLE'S ONLY HOPE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Thanks for that editorial in your paper as to that murder that was committed by the driver of that racing auto, when he ran down that man, with his family, who was going along in a small auto, and not driving criminally, as most of these fiends do. Do give us more such editorials, and agitate for the law to be changed, so that the owner, if in the auto at the time the law is broken, shall be held, as he is the real criminal, and it is a howling farce to hold the chauffeur, who is wholly under the control of the owner. You are our only hope, for the other papers will do nothing.

ONLOOKERS.

THE BLACKLIST OF THE 'IN-LAWS'

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

WITH great solicitude, a woman inquired of another if she were orthodox in her religious.

When told that her companion was a student of metaphysical lines of philosophy, and a believer in what is called "New Thought," and not a church member, the Solicitous Lady sighed and said solemnly: "Oh, that I could lead you into the light of the true faith in time to save you!"

Before the interview ended, the Solicitous Lady began to talk of her daughter-in-law, a lovely young woman of much culture and refinement. The criticisms, the innuendos, the sarcasms, the bitter jealousies displayed by the mother-in-law toward her son's choice shocked and disgusted the listener.

"And this is the missionary who hopes to save my soul," she said to herself. "May I be spared such salvation."

Common Type of Fanatic

GO into any country neighborhood and you will find this type of religious fanatic. Indeed, you will find entire communities composed of them; women who possess all the virtues save tolerance and kindness toward their in-laws; women who will give their last penny to the poor, sit night after night by beds of sickness, clothe the orphan and comfort the widow, fill the missionary box and weep over the heathen; but who will crucify their sons and daughters-in-law, or their mothers-in-law, with cruel speeches, unkind misconstructions, petty jealousies and mean persecutions.

It should be the chosen work of every clergyman in every church in the land to preach a sermon to such women three times a year.

Woman's Great Vice

EVERY phase of feminine vice of this nature (for it is one of the colossal vices and must be so called) the clergyman should place among the cardinal sins and endeavor to impress upon the minds of his listeners that salvation cannot be obtained until the vice is eliminated from the nature by prayer and humility.

The woman who is known to talk unkindly, or even disagreeably, of her relatives or neighbors should be put on probation until she learned the enormity of her sin, and not allowed to partake of the sacrament until she was truly repentant.

She Is Dangerous

THE wretched misery and unhappiness caused by this type of woman is inconceivable. She is as dangerous to a community as an immoral woman.

Invariably she believes herself a devoted mother, who is unselfishly interested in the best welfare of her son or daughter; or a devoted sister or aunt, bent on saving the dear relative from the wiles of a designing person.

But in almost every instance the most contemptible spirit of jealousy and intolerance lies at the root of the situation.

Whole communities are made unhappy by such women, and their influence has been known to shadow the lives of three generations by family broils and dissensions, which have lived beyond the grave and descended from family to family.

Attack this deadly, poisonous weed in your church gardens, good clergymen! It is a more Christlike work for you to do than to explain the dogmas of your men-made creeds.
